What? No Ether?
The King Business
A Sort of Promise
Going to Harvard
—By Arthur Brisbane—

PROF. MICHELSON, of Chicago, 76 years old, and a great scientist, has three tasks on hand.

He wants to improve his calculations on the speed of light. His figures, 186,284 miles per second, are known to be correct, within less than one mile. That does not satisfy Michelson.

He plans more accurate measurement of the diameters of stars. And he means to test Einstein's theory, which involves denying existence of the ether.

Michelson is not convinced, and wants to know. But he probably will not know.

We can no more understand, prove or disprove the existence of the ether than a chip floating on water could prove the water's existence. It would call water "a hypothesis." Many call the ether a mere hypothesis. But chips of wood must float on something. Stars and planets must float in something.

Gravity's power works through space, on objects separated by billions of miles. It could not exercise its force across a void. There must be some connecting medium, and, whatever that is, is ETHER. Man cannot know about it, for the present. The remarkable fact is that he can even think, and TRY to know about it.

Being a king is no longer "a business." Afghanistan has had three kings within a week. Amanullah resigned when his subjects rebelled against Paris fashions and uncovered faces for women, and handed the throne to his brother, Inayatullah.

Now a rebel, "Bacha Sakso," outlaw of the hills, seizes power from Inayatullah and is crowned Habibullah Khan. Habibullah means "Darling of God." Eastern rulers like such titles. Tamerlane or Timur the Lame, called himself "The Earth Shaker," and that was no exaggeration.

Attila was called the Curse of God, and he boasted that where his horse trod the grass never grew again.

Luckily for us prosaic white people, these "darlings," "earth shakers," etc., know nothing of machinery, and waste little time in thought. So white men sell them goods and control their destinies in the long run. It is even suggested that Britain is back of Allah's Darling, and helped him to his new job.

The Rev. M. Allen Keith, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Lincoln, Neb., asks: "Why do you, in the Omaha Bee-News call the peace pact 'a sort of solemn promise?'"

It is a sort of promise because Britain reserves the right to do as Britain chooses, in British zones of influence spread over half the Globe.

"No war" is a nice theory, but you must not expect Britain to apply the pact to 300,000,000 in India, other millions in Africa, etc. You must distinguish between war and "policing inferior races."

It's a sort of promise, because France is spending billions of francs on more warships, including huge submarines able to travel round the world. They are not built exclusively for scientific exploration.

And Germany, obliged to be cautious, for the present, is found preparing secretly for possible war against Poland, much to the indignation of Britain and France.

However, the pact solemnly signed states what is not true, in a way to make sentimentalists happy. That will put a stop to tiresome conversation, for a while.

Thanks to Senators Reed and Moses, this nation expressly exempts the Monroe Doctrine from the Peace Pact, reserving the right to fight for that doctrine. In various other ways, we took the mainspring out of the watch. If we now proceed to build fast cruisers, submarines and fighting planes, to prepare for Peace Pact possibilities, no harm will have been done.

Last year, it cost $10,589,000 to run Harvard College, money well spent, if only one new and important idea should be born of all the young heads.

The boys paid in tuition fees $2,400,330.09. Football and baseball brought in $985,959.58.

Lectures on philosophy do not draw any "gate."

It's a fine college, none better perhaps, but every college recalls the French saying about travel: Les voyages forment la jeunesse, quand ils ne la déforment pas. "Travel forms youth, when it does not deform it."

That Edison or Lincoln would still have been Edison or Lincoln after four years at Harvard is improbable.

Mrs. Josephine McCarthy and Miss Nora Woodford (staff photo), sisters of Mrs. "Babe" Ruth, as they left church after requiem high mass today.

RUTH GIRL IS SENT TO NEW YORK

A move to block in Middlesex Probate Court any attempt on the part of the late Mrs. "Babe" Ruth's family to adopt Dorothy Ruth was made today by John P. Feeney, counsel for the home run king.

Dorothy today was in New York and is believed to be back in the Brooklyn, N. Y., orphanage from which she was taken in 1921 by "Babe" and Mrs. Ruth when only 14 months old.

The girl was whisked away to New York from the Academy of the Assumption in Wellesley, where she has been a pupil for the past three years.

Atty. Feeney, in guarding against any possible attempt at adoption, sent to the Middlesex county registrar of probate asking to be notified if any petition for administration of Mrs. Ruth's estate is filed, or if any action is begun looking to adoption of the nine-year-old girl.

In the same mail was received a letter from Maj. Judson Hannigan, counsel for the Woodford family of South Boston, asking notification of any petition for administration, but not mentioning Dorothy.

Meanwhile, in an attempt to agree amicably on disposition of Mrs. Ruth's estate and on the future of the little girl, Attys. Feeney and Hannigan met in conference today a few hours after the requiem high mass for the fire victim was sung in St. Augustine's Church, South Boston.

Only three members of the family attended the mass, celebrated by the Rev. Joseph Coppinger. They were Miss Nora Woodford, Mrs. Mary Tighe and Mrs. Josephine McCarthy, three of Mrs. Ruth's four sisters.

Mrs. Woodford, it was learned, was too ill to attend the mass. She was nearly in a state of collapse following the funeral yesterday. The other members of the family were also suffering from the reaction.

Terris Moss was sung by Miss Elizabeth A. Cahane and Miss Agnes Daily, with Miss Teresa R. Donovan as organist.

Following the mass, the three sisters went to the altar rail and knelt before the statue of St. Joseph for some minutes. Then they each lighted a vigil light and departed.

"Babe" Ruth himself was still in Boston today and probably will remain until the adjustment of the estate is made.

From one of the "Babe's" closest friends it is learned that the Yankee's slugger has no desire to touch a penny of money of his dead wife's estate or to obtain any of the jewels.

What Ruth is chiefly interested in are the letters and papers of Mrs. Ruth.

Before going into the lawyers conference today, Maj. Hannigan made the following statement:

"All that the family of Mrs. Ruth seeks are their legal rights. I would also like to state that Mrs. Woodford wishes me to explain to her friends that she was very sorry that many relatives and friends were prevented from going to the funeral because of confusion of dates over which she had no control."

Out of today's conference an amicable adjustment of the estate was expected to come, especially since Ruth made peace overtures yesterday with Mrs. Woodford, the bereaved mother.

The peace overtures with Mrs. Ruth's family were made by Ruth on his own initiative, it was declared. The overtures were forthcoming after Maj. Judson Hannigan, counsel for the Woodford family, the mother, sisters and brothers of Mrs. Ruth, had brought a petition in the Middlesex Probate Court seeking to prevent anyone opening or examining the belongings of Mrs. Ruth.

The petition was denied, but it was looked upon as a forerunner of court litigation, in the event that Ruth demanded that the jewels, securities and other valuables belonging to his wife, be turned over to him as her husband.

Ruth's original peace overtures were started as he rode to Calvary Cemetery in the same car with his wife's mother, Mrs. Jeanna Woodford, and with Mrs. Josephine McCarthy, a sister of the late Mrs. Ruth.

Ruth, while in the auto, riding silently through the dismal day toward the cemetery, leaned over and patted the knee of his grief-stricken mother-in-law.

WANTED TO DO RIGHT

"How is everything?" he asked her. Then, significantly, "Is everything all right," he inquired.

Mrs. Woodford's answer was forthcoming promptly. "Yes, Mr. Ruth," she replied, simply.

"I want everything to be all right with you," the Babe said, in audible voice to the sorrowing mother. "I want it to be—"

Mrs. Woodford nodded. Through her tears she said nothing more, although it was evident, it was declared, that she was pleased at the words of the Babe.

Broken, distraught, his nerves blasted by the long ordeal he had been through, Ruth went to the home of a Boston police official to seek rest last night. Today he was reported as being greatly improved mentally and ready and eager to write "finis" to the tragic case.

Rockefeller fight to remove him from the leadership.

Asked if he was here to get proxies, Stewart replied:

"Absolutely not. I am not here in this proxy matter at all. I am here on affairs of the company which I do not care to make public. I shall only be in New York until Saturday and I do not want to discuss the fight with Mr. Rockefeller, Jr."

"NO BAND WAGON TALK."

"I do not care to indulge in any of this band wagon talk. The proxies will be voted on on March 7 and those alone will settle the fight. Proxies change daily and no one can tell in advance how the vote will go."

Asked whether he expected a close contest, Stewart said:

"No one can forecast that at this time. The organization is behind me and the board of directors is behind me. This is a very strong argument in my favor.

"I prefer not to say definitely that the directors resent Mr. Rockefeller's attitude, but I will say that they are strongly in favor of me."

Commenting on the report in today's New York Times to the effect that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., had come to the aid of his son, Col. Stewart said he would not believe the report until he had seen unquestionable proof."

SCOFFS AT SUTHERLAND.

"I have been with Mr. Rockefeller for 25 years," said Stewart, "I have given him and the company unquestionable support and I have no intimation that he will not support me."

Told that Howard E. Sutherland, alien property custodian, who by virtue of his office, holds the voting power of more than 12,000 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana, has asserted the proxies of that stock to Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., Stewart said:

"Mr. Sutherland does not know a single member of the organization and I am confident that he made no effort to investigate the affairs of the company before taking the position he did. I am sure that if he made an investigation he would change his stand in this flight."

Col. Stewart concluded his interview with reporters with this sentence:

"I sincerely hope that Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., will have a nice time on his visit to the Riviera."

WOMAN BANKER SENT TO JAIL FOR THEFT

Justice Hall, who placed on file charges of making 28 false entries on the books of the corporation.

Miss Burnham was the first woman bank treasurer in Massachusetts by act of the Legislature, and for 41 years was connected with the Workingmen's Co-operative Bank.

She was indicted in June, 1928, after a discrepancy of upward of $20,000 was said to have been discovered by Frank E. Burbank, the treasurer, four days after Miss Burnham had been out of the bank on sick leave.

At the trial it was revealed that Miss Burnham was paid a salary of $4500 a year and owned an automobile, hiring a chauffeur to drive her about for the day. There was no evidence that she was living beyond her means and police formed the theory that she had given the stolen money to someone else.

Miss Burnham went to work for the bank when she was 18 at a salary of $6 a week, and by application and industry worked up through the various grades until she became so valuable that the bank obtained legislation authorizing the appointment of a first assistant treasurer and she was given the position.

is distinctly unfavorable to curtailments on personal liberties not absolutely required by the social welfare, the editorial continues:

"Contrast this with the proposals of reform agencies, which are reported to have redoubled recently their efforts to curtail the liberties of citizens in the pattern of public law.

"Many of these reform organizations have established headquarters under the shadow of the Capitol, and the concerted campaign launched throughout the country to bring pressure on the new Congress recently has been termed by the National Association Opposed to Blue Laws as the 'bigotry lobby' in the national capital.

"Doubtless the worst reformers have the best intentions, but it has too often happened that the most flagrant abuses and the employment of the most indefensible means in the achievement of its ends have characterized ill-considered attempts of the Puritanically-minded to make their personal tastes and desires the standard for public morality regardless of the true Christian tradition and precepts, and too often, also, with neglect of the real essentials of social and economic betterment.

"We cannot contemplate the present reform agitation, therefore, without some forebodings."

Oklahoma Governor Faces Impeachment

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 18 (INS)—The Oklahoma House of Representatives investigating committee today returned a bill of impeachment against Governor Johnston. Ten counts were included in the bill which charged misappropriation of funds and general incompetency.

Impeachment proceedings had been impending since 1927 and the 1928 general election was fought out between adherents and enemies of Johnston in the Legislature. Johnston repelled an advertised assault with state militia in 1927, succeeding where former Governor J. C. Walton, later impeached, had failed in 1923.

Bloom, who took office six weeks ago, was appearing for the city in a motion for the reopening of a tax case. He said he had heard that Justice Levy was formerly a member of the law firm making the motion.

"Who told you that?" asked the court.

"The information is from my office," said Bloom.

"Who told you that?" insisted Justice Levy, this time in louder voice.

"Well, specifically, a clerk in my office," answered Bloom.

"You're under arrest for criminal contempt," exclaimed the court.

LEAGUE SPONSORS PEACE PLAN OF HARVARD MAN

INVESTIGATES ECONOMIC DANGERS

Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 18 (AP)—Ratification of the Kellogg pact by the United States having been voted, international circles are now showing a deep interest here in the League of Nations' decision to push forward an inquiry suggested by Prof. Allyn A. Young of Harvard University into the economic tendencies influencing world peace.

Prof. Andre Siegfried, French sociologist, whose book "The United States of Today" is now widely affecting European thought, and Prof. M. H. Bonn, German economist, former adviser to the German government on reparations problems and also a writer on American questions, have been invited to begin the study and doubtless Prof. Young himself will be asked either to join the committee or forward suggestions. The economists will work in close collaboration with the League's economic section.

Prof. Young already has outlined his ideas, his beliefs being that economic causes of war are a mixture of economic and psychological factors including such questions as sea power, colonies and attempts to control arbitrarily the supply of raw materials, or exclusive advantages in markets or the resources of undeveloped parts of the world.

The economists now in Geneva generally agree that as the Kellogg pact tends to decrease the chances of war, so will it tend to reduce the risk of war emanating from economic rivalries. Nevertheless they are convinced that dangerous economic tendencies must be investigated and if possible remedied as reinforcement of the League Covenant and the Kellogg pact.

WOMEN'S CLUB AT CAPITAL TO BAR NEGRESS

Washington, Jan. 18 (INS)—The Congressional Club, composed of wives of senators and congressmen and others in official life, is facing a vexing question, and one that probably will be solved by the club's putting into effect a "blackball" system for the first time in its history.

Mrs. Peter Gerry, wife of the senator from Rhode Island, who was formerly Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, is now president of the club.

The perplexity arises out of the fact that in the next Congress Oscar De Priest of Chicago, a negro, becomes a member. Under present rules Mrs. De Priest automatically would become a member of the club with full privileges.

An amendment will be sought to the constitution next month which will give a membership committee power to approve or disapprove an applicant for membership. It involves a change in the club's constitution.

LYON WILL HOP TO HUB FROM PASADENA

The "great circle" route, swinging north over Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, will be used on the first leg of the Boston-London-Boston round trip flight planned by Capt. Harry W. Lyon, famous navigator of the "Southern Cross."

Capt. Lyon today plotted his intended course to London and return for the Boston Evening American.

He has indicated clearly the direction his huge, three-motored monoplane, now nearing completion, will take when it soars off on his adventure, bearing him and his co-pilots, Capt. Bill Lancaster and Mrs. Keith-Miller.

The route to London, as Capt. Lyon figures it, will be 3300 miles. It will swing northeast over Cape Fable, Nova Scotia, and Cape Race, Newfoundland; will continue due east over the North Atlantic; then will turn southeast and south over Ireland to England and the great city on the Thames.

Returning to America, the course will swing to the southwest over the Azores, passing about 300 miles north of the Bermudas, then swinging northwest to Boston, a distance of 4148 miles.

To test his new ship, Capt. Lyon will fly it direct from Pasadena, Cal., to Boston. The Boston field is not large enough to permit a trans-Atlantic take-off, but Capt. Lyon will utilize a Massachusetts beach for his runway.

CONFESSION OF SON REVEALS CAUSE

Carbon monoxide from a new still today killed a Lynn couple and nearly killed their 15-year-old son.

This was revealed by Myles Downs, Jr., at Lynn Hospital, where he regained consciousness and was confronted by police with the fact of the discovery of the still and its accessories in his home in Essex st., Lynn.

The victims were Myles Downs, 50, and his wife, Frances, 45, who were rushed to the hospital by police in the belief that they had been overcome by carbon monoxide from a gas heater in the kitchen.

A second visit to the house by police, whose attention was attracted to a large quantity of blankets and comforters in the kitchen, resulted in the discovery of the still in the cellar, together with an oil stove, five galvanized iron cans of mash, empty sugar bags, and a barrel containing alcohol.

Young Downs, revived by the persistent use of an inhalator over a period of hours, at length broke down and confessed that the oil stove used in heating the still was the cause of the death of his parents, rather than the gas heater which, he said, was not used.

He told the police the still had been started yesterday and the blankets and comforters were used to block the kitchen windows and prevent either lights or fumes from escaping.

The tragedy was discovered by Mrs. Wilbur Hartley, 26, daughter of the couple, who with her husband returned to her parents' home, where she resides. Unable to arouse anyone by knocking at the rear door, Hartley and his wife entered by a cellar door and went up to the dining room.

Mrs. Downs was found on a couch, still breathing but unconscious. In the kitchen was the body of Downs, while near by lay his son, partly under a table.

Hartley opened the windows while his wife telephoned the police, and a race against death was made to the hospital by two ambulances brought by Patrolmen Joseph P. Coyne and John P. Stringer, John P. Fournier and John F. Wall. The officers worked with inhalators during the trip, but Mr. and Mrs. Downs died.

At the hospital the use of the inhalator was continued on young Downs, with the result that he eventually regained consciousness. Meantime an investigation at the house had led to the belief that the gas heater had caused the trouble, by consuming the oxygen in the air.

When the police attempted to question young Downs he lapsed into unconsciousness again. This happened several times and the officers became suspicious, with the result that they made a second visit to the house, which resulted in the discovery of the still.

Young Downs, when questioned again, admitted the truth, and said he was confident the oil heater used in running the still was at fault.

Revive Somerville Woman in Ambulance

First aid measures applied in a lurching, skidding police ambulance saved the life of a woman gas poisoning victim in Somerville today.

Mrs. Rosanna Gallagher, 65, was found apparently lifeless in her kitchen on Somerville ave. The room was filled with gas from a stove burner which had been accidentally extinguished.

Neighbors called Patrolman Elmer E. Raymond. He arrived with the Somerville police patrol wagon. The woman was placed in the ambulance and in spite of the rough going over icy streets, Patrolman Raymond braced himself beside the unconscious woman's stretcher and continued to apply measures to induce respiration.

When hospital doctors took the patient in charge, she was beginning to breath. Her name was placed on the danger list.

'Great Circle' Route Planned By Capt. Lyon On Hub-London Round-Trip

HEART'S DESIRE IS TO EDUCATE CHILDREN

Worcester, Jan. 18—Mrs. Mae Chauncey, Gardner st., mother of two children, planned to seek new fields today for a husband that will provide a home for her and an education for the children.

She has turned down the offer of Joseph Volk Zimman of Milford. His apartment is too small, she says, and with only three rooms, things would be too crowded for Zimman, herself and the two youngsters.

It had appeared for a while as though the Milford man would win the hand of the woman who issued an appeal through the press for a helpmate.

But for reasons which she herself would not divulge, she notified Zimman that their affair was off.

Mrs. Chauncey says that she could give the children a living, but she wants them to be educated, and their new father must be in a position to and willing to provide that education for them.

Word from Milford revealed today that Zimman had received notice of the termination of their "romance" through the mail. He said that he had been informed that his proposal had been given due consideration, but that Mrs. Chauncey had finally decided to reject it.

Zimman revealed that he received a visit from Mrs. Chauncey's brother-in-law the day previous, in the course of which the latter asked to see his bankbook, a request which Zimman denied.

As a result of the publicity which he has received, Zimman has received several proposals of marriage, one coming from a widow with six children.

M. F. Beasley, Cleveland millionaire, and a group of wealthy residents of that city who are to accompany him to the South Pacific in search of a submerged island he claims to have seen in a dream, will reach here within two weeks, it was announced today at the Richard T. Green shipyards in Chelsea. The McMillan ship Peary, in which the party are to make the trip, is now undergoing repairs there.

Coolidge Has No Fears of Thirteen

Washington, Jan. 18 (INS)—President Coolidge evidently doesn't fear any 13 hoodoo.

He entertained the unlucky number of senators at a White House breakfast today. Eight Democrats and five Republicans.

Present were Blease and Smith of South Carolina, Stephens of Mississippi Trammell of Florida, Overman of North Carolina, Walsh of Massachusetts, Bayard of Delaware and Thomas of Oklahoma, all Democrats, and Gould of Maine, Burton of Ohio, Schall of Minnesota, Hastings of Delaware and ex-Senator Butler of Massachusetts.

CLUBMAN KILLS POLICEMAN; IS SHOT DOWN

Philadelphia, Jan. 18—W. Griffen Gribbel, socially prominent Philadelphia clubman, who shot and killed Inspector John W. Blackburn here last night and fatally wounded the inspector's chauffeur, according to police, was given a chance to recover this morning by physicians who removed three bullets from the clubman's body. Gribbel was shot by police who rushed to his mansion in Chestnut Hill following a wild shooting affray there.

Joseph Lawrence, Inspector Blackburn's chauffeur, is dying at Chestnut Hill Hospital. Police said that Gribbel, a shell-shocked war veteran, apparently had become demented.

Gribbel, who is 43 and the father of four children, is the son of John Gribbel, prominent Philadelphia financier and society man.

He ran amuck when he learned that his wife planned to send him to another sanitarium, police said

Miklas Praises U. S. In Austrian 'Talkie'

Vienna, Jan. 18 (AP)—Appearing in the first talking film made in Austria by Americans, President Miklas today transmitted a glowing message of praise to the American people for their assistance, not only to Austria in its days of adversity, but their constant encouragement and support of the nations of the world.

The Austrian President said it was gratifying to see an increasingly large number of Americans studying in Austrian universities and scientific institutions.

Lighted Numbers for Stockholm Houses

Stockholm, Jan. 18—Stockholm will have illuminated house numbers this year. The city's electrical company is now considering a way to realize the plan and the municipal authorities are expected to act on it in the near future. Representatives of the Stockholm rent payers' association have expressed themselves as highly in favor of the scheme.

A GOOD STUNT IN TRAFFIC

HE'S DOING IT FOR HEALTH

WHELAN HEADS GEM ROBBERY PROBERS

New York, Jan. 18—Police Commissioner Grover Whelan had his biggest job, since assuming office a few weeks ago, staring him in the face today—the biggest robbery in this city since Gerald Chapman and Dutch Anderson committed their million-dollar mail theft.

The latest crime, which is receiving the personal attention of Whelan, was the theft of jewelry estimated at $200,000 from the Mouboussin jewelry establishment opposite St. Bartholomew's Church, by four young men.

REJECT BIG DIAMOND

The loss might have been far greater, but for the fact that 80 per cent of the stock had been sent to the Miami, Fla., branch of the establishment, and that the robbers rejected one giant diamond valued at $500,000, because, detectives believed, they thought it was too large to dispose of.

The store occupies a three-room ground-floor apartment just above 51st st. has no show windows, and announces its presence from the outside solely by a small bronze plate inscribed "Mouboussin, successor to Noury, Paris and New York."

When the robbery occurred the place was occupied by the manager, Evon Randler, Michael Barmache, a manufacturing jeweler, with whom he was conversing; Constance de Maurice Randler's secretary; Maurice Denhart, the firm's Paris representative; a negro scrubwoman and Jacob Lowenthal, a private detective, who went on duty as guard to substitute for John Churchill, the regular guard, who was sent South with the consignment of jewels for Miami.

INQUIRE FOR GUARD

Another guard hired with Lowenthal and a clerk had reported sick and were not present when the four robbers stepped quietly in and drew pistols.

"Where's Jack Churchill?" one of the robbers asked, expressing surprise at not finding the regular guard. Lowenthal was disarmed before he could draw his gun and the four men and two women were tied up in a rear room. Jewels were taken in trays from the open safe and poured into a leather bag, only the one large stone being rejected, then the four walked out.

1 HURT AT FIRE IN SOMERVILLE

Flames which spread while firemen were delayed by icy streets and by the fact that a fire alarm box was out of commission, caused $10,000 damage to a two-story wooded business block on Craigie st., Somerville, for which three alarms were sounded. One fireman was injured.

Hose Co. No. 5, located at Somerville ave. and Lowell st., but 100 yards from the fire, responding to a still alarm was unable to make the grade up the steep Craigie st. hill because of the icy condition of the street.

Members jumped from the stalled apparatus and ran back to the fire house where an effort was made to sound an alarm from box 18 on the fire house outside wall. The hosemen discovered the box was out of order and then were forced to run more than 200 yards to box 412 at Edward Wilson sq.

BALLOTS GONE; SEEKS RECOUNT

Holyoke, Jan. 18—Mrs. Elizabeth Towne, former alderman and candidate for mayor in the December election, has filed with Mayor Fred G. Burnham and Dist.-Atty. C. R. Cason of Springfield a petition for a recount of the vote cast for mayor. She bases her position on an article that appeared in a Holyoke newspaper shortly after election, which alleged that there had been fraud.

City Clerk J. F. Sheehan made known that the ballots cast in the election were destroyed January 8, in accordance with the statutory provision, there having been found no irregularity or other cause for preserving them at that time.

Mrs. Towne ran a poor third in the three-cornered mayoralty race in which Mayor Burnham was re-elected. Former Mayor John F. Cronin was a contender, also.

Seek Relatives of Hospital Inmate

A telegram was received by Superintendent Michael H. Crowley from the Danvers State Hospital, requesting the location of relatives of William Berry, who died Monday.

The message stated that a Mrs. Patrick Houghton of 42 Cross st., Boston, was the last relative to visit the hospital. This was about 10 years ago, but nothing has been heard from her since that time.

Romantic Gretna Green Draws 5 U. S. Couples

Gretna Green, Scotland (AP)—Romance blossomed in this historic resort of runaway lovers with more than ancient splendor during the last twelve months.

Beguiled by the hymeneal traditions which hang over the anvil of the Gretna Green smithy and the informal altar of the toll collector, two hundred couples said their marriage vows here in 1928, setting a new record.

Five American bridegrooms claimed their brides here during the boom year.

No longer is a Gretna Green marriage necessarily the climax of an elopement. Since 1856 it has not been possible to unite man and wife with glorious haste on this side of the border. But the glamor of the old romantic days will draw scores of couples to take the matrimonial pledge.

Flu Milder Than in 1918, But Vicks Sets New Record

Although the type of flu this year is not so serious as in 1918, health authorities are urging everybody to treat even the slightest cold at the start as colds lower the resistance and make the body an easy prey to bronchitis or pneumonia.

An interesting response to this warning has been the phenomenal call for Vicks Vapoflub, the external treatment which proved so helpful in the 1918 epidemic.

In spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating all night long and are now producing 375,000 jars daily. A substantial part of this increase is attributed to the widespread use of Vicks as a preventive.

Father of Corncob Pipe Mourned In Missouri Town

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 18 (AP)—Preparations were being made here today for the funeral of Anton A. Tibbe, 70, father of the modern corn cob pipe and the man who put Washington, Mo., on the map as capital of the cob pipe industry.

Mr. Tibbe's father, Henry Tibbe, a wood worker, hit on the value of corn cob pipes a half century ago. It remained for his son to put the business over in a big way.

Nearly 20,000 acres of Franklin County, Mo., land now are devoted to raising the peculiarly large cobs essential to the industry.

Mexachusetts leads the list of purchasers of pipes.

FAILURE TO SEE SIGNALS LED TO 5 DEATHS

Aberdeen, Md., Jan. 18 (AP)—An immediate investigation will be started by officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad into the wreck which last night claimed the lives of five trainmen and shook up hundreds of passengers on two through express trains.

The investigation will be in the hands of Ralph O. Russell, superintendent of the Maryland division of the road, and will be started with questioning of J. H. Lee, fireman of the northbound express, which crashed into the rear of a slow-moving freight, throwing cars on the south-bound track, wrecking the New York-Washington express.

RAN BY SIGNALS

Mr. Lee said the only explanation he could give for the accident was that Engineer Leon Sweeting had failed to see the signals, of which there were two set to show that the freight was ahead.

S. A. Klein, brakeman, and V. A. Stewart, flagman, riding in the caboose of the freight, were killed, as were Leon Sweeting, T. J. Kavanaugh, fireman, and A. L. Terhune, engineer of the south-bound express. Terhune's body was still pinned beneath the wreckage early today as section crews sought to clear the tracks so that traffic could be resumed.

The double wreck tore up more than 150 yards of track.

WEALTHY PASSENGERS

Many wealthy New Yorkers were reported as passengers on the Washington express, en route to Florida resorts. Fritz Kreisler, concert violinist, and Dr. Henry Vandyke, Princeton University, were passengers on the express. They were unhurt.

Passengers of both trains were brought to Baltimore on relief trains, the most of them were suffering from shock.

For some time following the crash communication was impossible because telegraph and telephone poles had been torn down. Dynamite was used in the heavy fog recalling families that had been separated and searching the cars for persons who in the excitement were thought to be trapped.

REFUSE TO GIVE UP HOPE FOR 25 ON HUB SHIP

Long overdue in the North Pacific, the steamship Gilda Scuderi, bound from Boston to Kobe, Japan, today was given up by shipping circles as lost. She was commanded by Capt. Frank Dooley and carried a total crew of 25.

The steamship left Boston last September for Houston, Tex., where she was to take on scrap metal for Kobe. Early in November the steamship, of lake type, arrived at Seattle and refueled for the passage of about 5000 miles to Kobe, to be turned over there to her owners.

When about to leave Seattle, November 5, Capt. Dooley is said to have stated he would take the northern track as the shortest route to Kobe. He would call at Dutch Harbor to report himself the Scuderi having no wireless equipment. At Dutch Harbor, in Unimak Pass, is a radio station of first importance, a trifle less than 2000 miles from Seattle. There is no evidence at hand that the Scuderi called at the harbor.

On December 27 vessels in the North Pacific were requested to search for the Scuderi. Her fuel capacity was sufficient for about 12 days steaming and, under ordinary conditions she might log 300 miles a day.

Although shipping circles have given the vessel up as lost, relatives of Boston members of the crew today pointed out that Capt. Dooley and his crew may be marooned on the Aleutian Islands, or, perhaps, on the Siberian coast.

Before the Scuderi left Boston she was inspected for hull and boilers by the United States local steamboat inspection service and the owners expended about $20,000 to recondition the vessel. On the eve of departure the freighter therefore was sound and seaworthy, able to go anywhere and take astriubbing with any craft her tonnage.

Therefore, the factor of unseaworthiness may be disregarded. Nevertheless, the Scuderi may have stumbled on an Aleutian reef permitting the crew to get ashore. She may have run short of fuel and headed up for a harbor among the islands, shutting her away for the winter. And, too, she may be adrift with bunkers swept to the last particle of dust, yet sound as a nut and with ample provisions while waiting a rescue ship.

Court Adjourns In Tribute to Braley

All sessions of the Massachusetts Supreme Court were adjourned today until next week out of respect to Justice Henry K. Braley, who died in his 75th year at his home, 151 Klisyth rd., Brighton, and who will be buried from there Sunday afternoon.

When the full bench filed in today, Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg, referring to the deceased as the late senior justice of the Supreme Court, announced adjournment until Monday, and today's equity session. Judge William C. Wait, adjourned until Tuesday.

Individual members of the bench and bar, together with state and city officials, joined in paying tribute to Judge Braley, who had been on the Supreme bench since 1902.

ONE DEAD, TWO GIRLS DYING IN FOG CRASH

Brockton, Jan. 18—One man died today, two girls lie at the point of death and a second man is under treatment for less serious injuries as a result of an accident in the fog when a trolley car crashed into a stalled automobile on Belmont st.

DEAD.
Vincent Caplin, 26, Wyman st.
INJURED.
Marion Albanys, 21, No. Main st.
Alice Callahan, 21, Albion st.
Frank Stone, 27, Wyman st.

Caplin die dfour hours after the accident at Brockton Hospital, where the others injured were also taken.

The party of four were riding in an automobile which skidded near the Brockton line in South Easton, its front end going into a ditch and its rear resting on the trolley car tracks at the side of the road.

A wrecker was sent for and then the four riders waited for its arrival in their stalled car. The trolley swung around a curve just beyond the scene of the accident and the motorman, who was Frank Costello of Rockland, according to the police, could not see the auto in time to stop.

The front trucks of the car left the tracks in the collision and the car barely missed crashing head-on into a telephone pole. The automobile was flung on its side and the injured were extricated with difficulty, passengers on the car and passing motorists lending aid.

On the way to the hospital with the two girls a driver who had volunteered his car as an ambulance ran out of gasoline, causing a delay of 15 minutes.

Caplin's injuries were chiefly internal. Miss Albanys, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis V. Albanys, has internal and serious back injuries. The Callahan girl, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. John J. Callahan, has back and internal injuries and a fractured pelvis. The girls' names are on the danger list. Stone received a fractured leg and rib.

Apparatus Goes 3 Miles to Fight Fire

Rochester, N. H., Jan. 18—Two pieces of apparatus from the Central fire station travelled three miles over the slippery roads in a sleet storm in answer to a call from the home of "Sonny" Lott, on the Jeverd., where a large barn containing two motor cars and some stored furniture was destroyed by fire. The blaze which caused $3000 loss, was believed to have started from a short circuit in one of the cars.

Washington, Jan. 18—Robert W. Malone and Boston and New York associates have purchased three freighters from the Shipping Board for $148,000. The vessels are the John Jay, the James Otis and the Terre Haute.

The Shipping Board sold a total of nine freight ships to various operating companies for a total of $320,194.

Malone and his associates plan to form a corporation to operate the vessels in the tramp freight service. The selling price of the vessels was $55,000 for the John Jay, $50,000 for the James Otis, and $35,000 for the Terre Haute.

JOAN BENNETT IS PICKED FOR COLMAN FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Copyright, 1929, Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18—Joan Bennett, the youngest of Richard Bennett's daughters, is headed in the direction of Hollywood. She has been playing in "Jarnegan" in New York with her father and now that the company is starting on a tour Miss Bennett has decided to accept Samuel Goldwyn's offer to play opposite Ronald Colman in "Bull Dog Drummond," as well as a three-year contract with United Artists.

The selection of the youngest of the Bennetts was influenced largely, there is little doubt, by her stage experience. What with abandoning sound in Vilma Banky's picture for some reason or other, perhaps because there were no trained voices, there is no chance that "Bull Dog Drummond" will suffer the same fate.

In the cast are such trained troupers as Montagu Love, Lawrence Grant and Lilyan Tashman. Joan Bennett is even more beautiful than her two sisters, Constance and Barbara. She more than the other two inherits her father's and mother's stage ability.

Constance left the screen at the very height of her success to become the wife of Phil Plant, a New York multimillionaire and Barbara has taken up dancing as her vocation. Joan is the baby of the family and was still in kindergarten when Colman was making pictures on the Paramount lot.

WITH everything sweetness and light between John Gilbert and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, it looks as if Jack is to get some special attention in the matter of stories this next year. The new contract, which gives Gilbert a pleasant raise in salary, goes into effect May 1, and his first vehicle under the new arrangement will be "The Way of a Sailor."

The story by Albert Richard Wetjen unfolds the tale of a sailor who travels around the world. If the public has its way, Greta Garbo will furnish the feminine interest, and since nothing would please Jack and Greta better, wishing may make this hope come true.

THE inactivity of Mack Sennett has been the subject of much discussion. Would or would he not again make pictures? Apparently Sennett's retirement is a great deal like Mark Twain's death, untrue. He has been quietly experimenting with sound pictures and now steps forth to announce that he will make a short reel talkie with Barbara Leonard, one of last year's Wampas Baby stars, and Tyler Brooke.

We are glad that Mack isn't deserting the ship, for the man who gave the world the Keystone bathing beauties and such favorites as Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels, Phyllis Haver, Mabel Normand and others is too young to think of leaving the film business.

ANITA LOOS may decide to retire as a writer but her title, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" goes on forever, paraphrased in one form or another. Edmund Goulding has just contributed a title to Pathe called "Women Prefer Brutes." You wouldn't exactly call that a steal from Anita Loos' play but there is a dangerous similarity in the name. Alan Hale will have the lead and Tay Garnett will direct. Tay Garnett, by the bye, is the young scenario writer who walked right into his directorial place after learning his trade with his typewriter.

"THE Battle of the Sexes" demonstrated one thing and that is that Jean Hersholt has as much interest for the fans as any of our young sheiks. The trouble is Hersholt has not always been given the right opportunities. He has been cast in pictures in which he was utterly lost. He probably realizes that fact himself for he is leaving Universal March 1, to free lance. There is no doubt that free lancing as a rule is better for character actors for they can pick and choose their roles.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Norma Talmadge walking through the lobby of the Roosevelt Hotel. Patsy Ruth Miller and Tay Garnett dining quietly together. Gary Cooper returning to town five pounds lighter than he was when he went on location. Sophie Tucker handing some of her friends a laugh with her wittiisms.

Ruth Chatterton and Ralph Forbes attending the premiere of "The Guardsman." Hollywood getting used to seeing them together again. Mildred Zukow Loew answering questions on how it seems to be in the movies, after working two days on Mary Pickford's set. Mildred Davis Lloyd in black, wearing a diamond necklace given her for Christmas by Harold Lloyd. Pauline Garon trying on Bessie Love's Paris hat. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

CATHOLICS GET MORE LIBERTY

Rome, Jan. 18 (AP)—It was learned today that greater freedom of action would be given the Catholic church in administrative and other affairs in Italy by the newly reached agreement on the Roman question.

Notably the accord gives religious organizations such as monastic orders, the Society for the Propagation of the Faith and the various congregations the right of instituting themselves as corporate bodies with a definite legal status. This would permit them to own property, receive bequests and institute legal proceedings.

By the terms of the accord the individual diocese may own property instead of merely holding it in trust.

KING IS RAPIDLY IMPROVING

London, Jan. 18 (INS)—King George had a good night's sleep, Buckingham Palace officials informed International News Service at 7:30 a. m. today.

Although both Queen Mary and Prince George have recovered from their recent colds, the Prince is still confined to his rooms as a precautionary measure.

A medical bulletin on his majesty's condition will be issued this evening.

During the last few days King George has shown great improvement and reawakened interest in everything about him.

His majesty has been enjoying long periods of natural sleep, particularly in the daytime, which have added materially to his strength. He is now thoroughly interested in matters connected with the official routine of his palace. His appetite is distinctly improved and he is no longer fed with a feeder.

Auto Insurance Is Called Big Issue

THE eyes of the whole nation are fixed upon the 1929 Massachusetts Legislature, watching for its solution of the compulsory auto insurance problem, asserted Lieut.-Gov. William S Youngman, before the Chelsea Woman's Club.

"What shall the State do about compulsory automobile insurance? I agree with the legislature that every car should carry insurance to protect the public against injury to life and limb, but I also agree with Governor Allen, that the State should compile the information necessary to ascertain what is a fair cost for the compulsory automobile insurance policy," he said in discussing "Present Day Problems of the State."

Lieut.-Gov. Youngman

"If the 1929 legislature will solve this problem, it will confer a great benefit upon the people of this State and those of all other states in the Union. It is an experiment in Massachusetts, other states are now watching to see how it works out.

PLAN SUBMITTED

"I have submitted to the legislature a plan which I believe is fair to all, in that it proposes to get the information and make it a matter of public record. This information must be had to establish any fair cost system for this automobile insurance, and none of this has been compiled in any of the three states that compulsory insurance has been in force."

The lieutenant-governor declared that his motto is "Let the drunken driver walk." He vigorously attacked the drunken driver, declaring that "no man should be allowed to fill his tank with gasoline and himself with alcohol, and drive on a public highway."

"It is my belief that anything that can be done to protect the homes and industries of our State from excessive charges, is a step in advance toward solving the present day problem of government," he went on.

NOW A NECESSITY

"When the legislature first began to levy charges on the automobile owner there were no motor trucks, and practically all autos were owned by wealthy people or corporations. The auto was a luxury and could be taxed as such without hesitation.

"Today, to millions of people in this State the automobile is a necessity. The motor truck and bus have come, and they are growing bigger all the time."

While the talk was still wet on the Kellogg pact for outlawing war, the endorsement of endorsement found vent in thunderous applause at the Woman's Republican club.

Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron, member of the Boston School Committee and an able lawyer, provoked it when she cried:

"Although we loved our country, we never dared to say that we did not believe in war until now. If we publicly protested wholesale butchery, we were hissed and called pacifists. But today, thank God, we can shout our joy, for our nation has now gone upon record against war, and no war is possible without the backing of public opinion."

Prolonged applause from 150 women greeted her masterly speech explaining the multilateral treaty.

BRAVES PLAN NO NEW PLEA FOR PERMIT

sel, whom he wants present at the interview, has been engaged in a court case on trial, which has now ended.

No further action on behalf of officials of the Braves to obtain a permit for Sunday baseball from the Boston City Council is to be taken.

This is the last word from Charles F. Adams, vice president of the club, who has just returned from a vacation to Bermuda. Adams, whose statement that a member of the council approached him, on the subject of being paid for putting through the Sunday baseball act, declared that so far as granting a permit is concerned, the council can do as it pleases.

"So far as I am personally concerned," he said, "I will do nothing toward obtaining a permit. We have filed our application, and there we shall rest. If it isn't possible to suggest anything without being called a blackjacker, it is best to do nothing. If the permit comes, it will come voluntarily from the City Council or it won't come at all," he said, flatly.

Adams, in New York after his vacation, hurled one more hot shot at the City Council. In discussing remarks made about him during the investigation.

"All that anyone needs to do to get the proper perspective on the case," he said "is to take the record of the city council meetings prior to the time any accusations were made, and read what they said about me personally. See what Wilson, Dowling and Dowd said before there had been any charges made. Those records should be public and open to anyone. I don't ask anything more than to have the people read the record. The public would soon appreciate who was fair and who was unfair.

"Now as to the Finance Committee hearings. There was only one issue before that body and that was: Were overtimes made by a city councilman seeking a bribe? It all comes down to a test of veracity of Lynch and Carroll against Adams and Fuchs. Everything else is immaterial.

"The testimony of Goulston and Carroll tended to exonerate Carroll, who I was willing to admit might have been innocently involved, but it did not exonerate Lynch. It seems that with all the calling of names, and the charges thrown back and forth, the sole issue was lost sight of or ignored.

DELAYED TRIP A WEEK

"I didn't know about the talk that I went away and left Judge Fuchs to fight the battle alone, but I'm not surprised at it. I wouldn't be surprised at anything they said or did. If I wanted to avoid anything or to leave the brunt of the burden to Judge Fuchs, I would have gone away as I had planned, instead of postponing my trip for a week. I was booked to go to Bermuda on Dec. 28, but I cancelled my booking in order to appear before the finance committee.

"I don't know anything about the Outdoor Recreation League, except that I considered it a reputable organization, similar to the Lord's Day League and other organizations. Of course, its purpose was different from that of the Lord's Day League, but its purpose is just as honorable.

"I don't know anything about the contributions, except that I subscribed $1000 for myself and $1000 as trustee for my son. The organization and its purpose was explained to me, and I told them to put me down for that amount."

Mr. Adams, apparently refreshed by his stay in Bermuda, appeared to be more interested in the progress of the Boston Bruins in its hockey campaign than in the baseball affair. He had had no word concerning the last two games played by the Bruins, and when informed that they had won both, felt so joyful that he could not be induced to talk further on the baseball matter.

TWILIGHT SLEEP OFFICIALS FACE DRUG CHARGES

Albuquerque, N. M., Jan. 18 (AP)—Possibility of federal charges of violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act today faced officials of the New Mexico Girls' Welfare Home here in connection with the death of Miss Helen Hasken, 18, an inmate, last Sunday following an injection of twilight sleep.

Announcement already has been made by District Attorney Eugene Lujes that manslaughter charges would be filed against Bertha Line, superintendent of the home, and Dr. Evelyn Frisbie, medical adviser, who were held responsible for the death by a coroner's jury.

When a joint committee of the State Legislature, headed by Governor R. C. Dillon, yesterday took up an official investigation of the death and conditions at the home, J. C. Pieper, federal operative, announced he was following the evidence closely to determine if those in charge had violated federal anti-narcotic laws in using the drug as a sedative.

He asked permission of the legislative committee to question girl inmates and officials of the home.

Asks $57,000 Paid Out for Knapp Trial

Albany, Jan. 18 (INS)—Senator William T. Byrne, of Albany, conferred with Governor Roosevelt today on the matter of reimbursing Albany county the $57,000 it expended for the two trials of Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state.

Former Attorney General Albert Ottinger expressed the opinion that the state, rather than the county, should foot the bills since Mrs. Knapp was an elected state official. The county has been assured it will be reimbursed, but just how is a matter of concern.

Scheme to Reduce Chinese Forces

Nanking, Jan. 18 (AP)—A concrete scheme for the reduction of the military forces of China has been evolved at a meeting of the disbandment conference. It was decided to divide China into the six areas of Nanking, Loyang, Wuhan, Mukden, Peking and Southwest China.

The military forces of the entire country are not to exceed 65 divisions, each having a total of 13,000 men, making a standing army of 715,000 men. This would entail an annual expenditure of $192,000,000.

Buses on Bay View Line Tomorrow

The Boston Elevated tomorrow begins bus service along the route of the discontinued Bay View st. car line, South Boston. A trial trip over the route was made today with James P. Powers, governor's council member from South Boston, as guest of honor.

The new bus line marks the success of a campaign by residents of the neighborhood for service to take the place of the cars which ceased running several months ago.

FOCH DOCTORS ELATED AT HIS STEADY GAIN

Paris, Jan. 18 (AP)—Marshal Ferdinand Foch was so much better today that his doctors were actually talkative when they left his bedside, after a consultation of two hours.

"His heart is better and stronger," said Prof. Laubry.

"I am satisfied with the improvement in the condition of the kidneys," said Dr. Heitz-Boyer.

"And you may say for me that I found the marshal's general condition somewhat better this morning," chimed in Foch's regular physician, Dr. Davenport.

Together they issued the following:

"There is a slight improvement in the condition of the heart and kidneys."

Quincy Man Drops Dead

BOY COASTER IS KILLED IN AN AUTO CRASH

A 13-year-old East Boston boy died today and another is in a critical condition at City Hospital as a result of two coasting accidents.

John Collins, a city ward, making his home with Mrs. Annie Duffy Falcon st., died at City Hospital following an operation that was performed in the hope of saving his life.

The injured boy is Henry G. Urbose, 12, of Paris st., who was operated on for a fractured skull.

The Collins boy received internal injuries when his sled crashed into an automobile on Brooks st. Alvah Lasfort, 12, also a city ward and living at the same house as the Collins boy, was riding on the same sled, but slid off to the ground before the crash.

In the other accident, in which the Urbose boy was injured, when his sled hit a parked automobile on Putnam st., a chum, Ernest Vicain 12, of Saratoga st., escaped unhurt because he was riding behind.

BOOTH FIGHTS OUSTER WITH INJUNCTION

London, Jan 18 (AP)—The high council of the Salvation Army was today restrained by the chancery court from electing a successor to Bramwell Booth, deposed general.

The injunction operates until after a hearing by the court which is set for 10:30 a m next Monday.

Higgins Narrowly Averts Injury in Auto Crash

Sunbury-on-Thames, England, Jan 18 (AP)—The high council of the Salvation Army resumed its session this morning with two momentous questions up for discussion.

Choice of a successor to the deposed leader, Gen. Bramwell Booth, held up now by legality, and reforms in the army administration.

The council came near being deprived of the presence of its acting leader of the army, Commissioner E. J. Higgins, chief of staff. While en route to Sunbury his automobile crashed into a truck, throwing him from the front seat to the back. He sat with a load of bruises to remind him that it narrowly missed him. He was not hurt and continued the journey in another car.

Commander Evangeline Booth arrived from London shortly before the meeting opened. She was followed by Catherine Booth, who spent the night at a villa near Sunbury Court. Other members of the Booth family were not expected at Sunbury today.

Leading candidates to succeed the general are his sister, Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the army in the United States, and Commissioner Higgins.

HOOVER NAMES TRIO TO STEER N. Y. POLITICS

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Placing of Republican political authority in New York State during the next four years in the hands of three leaders was announced today by Edmond Machold, state committee chairman, after he and William H. Hill and Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the Treasury, had a breakfast conference with President-elect Hoover.

Besides Mr. Machold and Mr. Hill the third member of the group will be Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman, who conferred with Mr. Hoover earlier in the week.

MACHOLD CHIEF

Mr. Machold is to represent the group in most negotiations with the new President. He said that the three would agree upon recommendations for appointments for federal offices before names were submitted to Mr. Hoover for his consideration.

Mr. Hill was head of the Independent Hoover for President organization in New York State and the agreement on the handling of patronage was regarded as somewhat of a victory for him. Mr. Machold became state chairman in the last month after the death of George Morris.

NO CABINET TALK

Undersecretary Mills said the purpose of the Hoover conference with New York leaders was to reconcile individuals rather than factions. He added that cabinet appointments were not discussed.

Because both of the senators from New York are Democrats Mr. Hoover was inclined to look elsewhere for recommendations concerning patronage. Usually the national committeeman of a state is relied upon largely in such situations, but in the interest of party harmony this plan has been departed from in this instance.

HUNT WIFE WHO 'KIDNAPED' SON

New York Jan. 18 (INS)—If Mrs Libel G. Abbott, pretty young wife of Laurence Abbott, radio entertainer and vaudeville orchestra leader, is tired of New York State justice she will not be arrested and committed to the White Plains County jail.

Supreme Court Justice Young in White Plains, today issued a warrant for her arrest after she had failed to comply with a writ of habeas corpus secured by her husband, Laurence Abbott, to bring here for his 4 year old son, Joseph, into court.

Abbott, who is suing for a divorce, declared he found his wife with a "pale young man in purple pajamas" and charges Mrs. Abbott and her mother kidnaped little Joseph from his father's home just after Abbott's raid.

Plant May Produce Country's Rubber

Ft. Myers, Fla., Jan. 18 (INS)—Edison, one and powerful monarch of the Southland may be dethroned as the rubber plant.

That is, if the dream of Thomas A. Edison, the creative genius who turned night into day, comes true. Edison believes his dream is very near realization.

Edison is confident that he has found a plant which will produce rubber in commercial quantity and quality. A careful study of the plant will be made in the next five months.

Dog Teams Due In Lowell Tonight

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 18 (AP)—Two sled dog teams taking part in a 2,000-mile race from Berlin to Boston began the fifth leg of the contest today after resting here last night. Richard Mills of Gorham was the first to start, the other drivers following at 30-minute intervals. Edward P. Clark of Lincoln, who is leading in the race, was the last starter. His wife, although suffering from a wrenched ankle, remained in the contest. The teams will stop tonight at Lowell, Mass.

Elaborate Hookups at Hoover Inaugural

Washington, Jan. 18 (INS)—President-elect Hoover's inaugural address will be carried to every State and many foreign countries by radio.

Officials of the National Broadcasting chains and the Columbia chains were making arrangements today for elaborate hookups which will include all of the large stations and many small broadcasters. High efficiency channels will carry the words of America's new President to Europe, where they probably will be rebroadcast.

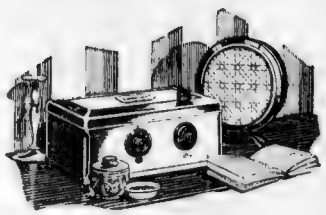
ATWATER KENT RADIO

Announcing the NEW

ELECTRO-DYNAMIC!

Of course you want an Electro-Dynamic set. Of course you want it to be an Atwater Kent. Now you can have it—and in your choice of table model or all-in-one set (completely Atwater Kent). And, as always, at the most moderate price for which fine radio can be purchased.



MODEL 16, the new all electric receiver. Lacquer finished. Has Uniform Dial. Uses 7 A. C. tubes and 1 rectifying tube, with double power tube stage. Without tubes, $83.

MODEL F-2 (Electro-Dynamic) speaker. True to the whole range of music, $34.

THE Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic!

The whole range of the grand organ or a full orchestra—the new Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic captures everything and reproduces everything. Its all-comprehensive realism you will appreciate instantly.

And this new radio is just as faithful to the human voice as it is to musical instruments. It no more suggests mechanical reproduction than does the trill of a lark. The singer, or announcer, or actor in a radio play, is—himself. You can't ask more than that!

MODEL 53, Electro-Dynamic all-in-one set. Compact lacquered cabinet. Fits so beautifully anywhere. Without tubes, $117.

Do you like to enjoy an orchestra or play from the best seat in the house? It's like that! Do you like to pick out the individual instruments and follow them as they weave their golden fabric? You can!

Do you like deep richness of tone? Do you like to hear the bass viol, the tuba and the drums—the bumble-bees of an orchestra—sound like the real thing—without over-emphasis anywhere?

As the music climbs from the caverns of the basses to the heights that only the violin and the piccolo can reach—do you want to know you are missing nothing?

Not only does the new Atwater Kent give you all this with finer, truer tone and ample volume made possible by Electro-Dynamic reproduction. It is—as you would expect from Atwater Kent—a very simple instrument. One cord to a lamp socket brings electricity to both receiver and speaker. One switch (on the receiver) turns everything on or off.

The Atwater Kent laboratory—which gave radio the true one dial, the compact, shielding case and so many other improvements—has worked a long time in perfecting the Electro-Dynamic. It was determined to achieve not just another example of the Electro-Dynamic principle but the perfection of it.

When the laboratory engineers said: "Here it is. It's what we wanted," the factory found out how this new set could be made at an Atwater Kent price—which always means the very lowest price for fine radio.

And here it is! Compact. Good looking. Electrically, mechanically, and acoustically as good an instrument as can be. Made with Atwater Kent precision. Durable. Reliable. Perfected.

Your ears will tell you there is no finer reception. Your knowledge of values will tell you that only the demand for Atwater Kent Radio (now in more than 2,000,000 homes) could make possible such a price.

With the winter not yet half over, with evening after evening and year after year of entertainment yet to come, you just can't afford not to see and hear the Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic. Do it! Enjoy yours now.

HIGHER STOCK PRICES SEEN BY FRIDAY

David Friday, economist, predicts 1929 will establish new records for production and profits, and higher stock prices in last half year than yet seen.

"Commodity prices," he said, speaking at annual dinner of Detroit Stock Exchange, "have not yet risen to point which would indicate we have already experienced culminating boom year of business revival which began in 1924," notwithstanding present credit stringency which he regards as temporary. Excess of exports over imports in 1929 will be even greater than in 1928, when it was $1,040,000,000, he believes. With continuance of high excess of exports, gold is bound to flow back to America in absence of further loans abroad, which have been discouraged by high interest rates," he said.

"America may well get several hundred million dollars in gold from abroad," Mr. Friday declared. "The outside world is supplied abundantly. In addition to this it will now have sent out the word it is reducing $200,000,000 worth of gold annually which goes into monetary uses. French economists have brought into the Bank of France almost $100,000,000 since legal stabilization in June last; Russia has sent Germany $17,000,000 in the past year which had not previously been in any monetary form; Argentina, Spain and Germany all have more gold than they need. The sum of their surplus holdings is not less than $300,000,000."

"If this return of gold materializes, the American money situation will ease almost as rapidly as it tightened, for it will at once reduce our rediscounts and federal reserve credit used by a corresponding amount. Our bankers will have to find more time to get adjusted to the new situation and will be less hesitant about rediscounting. When that has happened our money market and our rates of interest can move, as they will be determined by fundamental economic factors rather than by policy founded upon transitional and unfamiliar situation."

The greatest fallacy extant in United States, Mr. Friday pointed out, is belief that brokers' loans constitute money withdrawn from industry. Eighty to 90 per cent of brokers' loans stands to the credit of industry, he said.

Reputation of Business Is Better Than Government's!

dress if we have any legitimate complaint to make. If the grocer or the butcher or the baker sends us an incorrect bill, entailing an overcharge, he very readily does the right thing. If merchandise ordered from a department store is damaged in the slightest in the course of delivery, all we have to do is to state the fact and satisfactory action is immediately taken.

It has become axiomatic that the bigger the business concern, the more careful it is to satisfy customers. When the United States Steel Corporation was attacked by the Government no one customer, or even one competitor, came forward to make the slightest complaint of unfair treatment. Have you ever heard complaints about proper financial dealings on the part of such concerns as General Electric, Eastman Kodak, General Motors, Westinghouse, and, latterly, our large railroads? True, some corporations have not a spotless record specially in their dealings with supply concerns, but their number is decreasing.

But what do we find when we examine the record and reputation of the United States Government?

Its high-handedness, its distortions, its remedying its mistakes, its unwholesome behavior are notorious. Its minions rarely feel bounden to treat citizens with that consideration expected and received from business organizations. Tax gatherers and inquisitors of every description usually act as martinets. The hundred-dollar-a-month Government clerk does not hesitate to talk dictatorially to a hundred-thousand-dollar-a-year executive on some matter with which the latter is thoroughly familiar.

A shining example of the code and the tactics of the Government has just been afforded by the discussions in Congress of tax refunds.

If they could have their way, certain of our rulers apparently would refuse point blank to refund the millions of dollars Federal tax gatherers have illegally compelled individuals and corporations to hand over to the Government. Because Secretary Mellon has favored hasty action by the Treasury all have been denounced and maligned disgracefully—as this record testifies that Andrew W. Mellon built up a reputation over a period of a half a century for honorable dealings and an unimpeachable character.

What would these same critics say and do if they personally were grossly over-charged by some corporation?

Would they not first storm and rave, then institute legal proceeding if the money rightly belonging to them were not promptly returned?

Yet they stop at nothing to throw obstacles in the way of the United States government making refunds to individuals, firms and corporations absurdly proved entitled to them. They demand that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon act in a way Secretary Shanker Mellon would never dream of acting in his own business relationships.

Is it not hellish, the most elementary justice, that money illegally taken from the pockets of a citizen be restored at the earliest possible moment, whether the illegal taker of the money is a private citizen or the federal government? Should a government be less honest, less honorable, less considerate than its citizens, the people it is supposed to represent?

To ask the question is to answer it.

The impression created in many minds by reading some of the wild statements made in Congress must have been that the Federal Treasury is being emptied, not so say looted, by the settlement of disputed tax payments.

What is the plain truth?

None other than that the Government has actually collected in the form of back taxes, which it has proved were due it, no less than four times as much as all the refunds paid!

The activities of the Treasury and of the courts in digging into disputed taxes, far from bankrupting the Government has actually yielded a favorable balance of more than $3,000,000,000.

Secretary Mellon deserves the thanks of all decent citizens for what he has been able to do in the way of raising the Government's reputation.

Herbert Hoover has earned an equally enviable record in the world of business. Is it not reasonable to expect him to do everything within his power to improve the record and reputation of our Government in all its business dealings? It should not much longer be a commonplace complaint, "Oh, well, what can you expect from the Government?"

GROWTH LARGE IN EXCHANGE LISTINGS

Twenty-five years ago this week the tota. number of all shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange was only 79,928,838, or not quite twice as many shares as are now listed in one issue, that of General Motors common, with its 43,500,000 shares, the old stock of which will be traded in for the last time on January 30, according to an analysis by the current Banque Financial Review published by Sulzbacher, Granke & Co.

"This total on January 11, 1904—the 36th being Sunday—comprised the shares of 88 banks and trust companies and 53 railroads, 51 industrials and 26 public utilities, or 220 companies in all," says the Review in commenting upon the remarkable growth of the country's largest security market as graphically illustrated by the fact that today more than half as many shares of one stock issue are being traded in on any one day than were the total number of all shares listed twenty-five years ago almost to the day."

Brookmire Studies Market Outlook

An almost unbroken advance in the stock market from mid-December to the present time stands out of buying wave, with the result that buying, except in a few issues, should be deferred, the Brookmire Economic Service, Inc., says.

The influences of factors favoring the market are favorable, although the banking situation and an over bought condition in some stocks make caution advisable. There are still many factors supporting and stimulating the market, the economist declares.

Among these are the continued extraordinary investment demand for common stocks, represented by a billion dollars capital in investment trusts and millions of small investors, and the present state of mind of the public which tends to bring on an after wave of speculation buying into the market. There is also a prospect for unusual profits in the immediate future for steel, copper and other non-ferrous metals, for electrical equipment, motor accessories and equipment and many other manufacturing and distributing lines.

VIGILANCE OF EXPORTERS IS URGED

DR. JULIUS KLEIN

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Jan. 18.—Despite the fact that in 1928 the United States had its record peace-time foreign trade year with exports of $5,129,000,000, commerce department officials today urged the necessity of constant vigilance on the part of exporters in the scientific development of markets abroad and in fighting the competition of international cartels.

While confidence was expressed that 1929 will see another boost in foreign sales, which combined with purchases abroad may pass a value of $10,000,000,000, more severe competition from European exporters, and especially the cartels, is anticipated.

In a report prepared by Dr. Julius Klein, director of foreign and domestic commerce, it was asserted that the foreign trade situation is characterized by competition more intense than ever before.

"We are finding an intensity of effort in all parts of the world, by Germany particularly, and also by France, England and Italy, which is totally unlike the competitive situation at any time in the calmer days of the war," Dr. Klein said.

"The result of all that has been increasing difficulty in selling business and the need for increasing vigilance."

Dr. Klein called attention to the fact that the international cartels the post-war European competitive device, were spreading out over a number of industrial and commercial fields.

"It comprises a series of industries whose equivalent in this country produces about $7,000,000,000 of recorded ties annually," Dr. Klein added.

"In other words, the industries which have been cartelized in the international field have a total output of that much every year, giving an idea of the competitive situation facing this country.

"Those industries are scattered pretty well over the country. They involve steel, rayon, copper, electric bulbs, glass bottles wire, linoleum, zinc, tanning extracts, plate glass and others."

Venezuelan Oil Output at Peak

Venezuelan oil concessionaires, Ltd., produced 884,935 barrels of crude oil in the week ended January 12 a daily average of 133,571 barrels and a new high record.

In the preceding week, production was 919,100 barrels, or a daily average of 131,301 barrels.

NEW PLAN OF FARM SALES IN MAKING

A report which will help farmers to organize their business on the basis of the probable domestic and foreign demand for farm products during the ensuing year will be prepared by agricultural economists meeting in Washington the week of January 21.

Representatives of 45 State agricultural colleges and extension services will meet with economists of the United States Department of Agriculture, following which the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the department will issue on January 28 its annual agricultural outlook report covering each of the 48 States. The colleges will then prepare State and regional reports for their respective areas, the object of which is to help farmers to plan to balance production with the probable demand at harvest time.

"One of the difficulties with agriculture," according to Nils A. Olsen, chief Bureau of Agricultural Economics, "has been the tendency to make plans for the future on current market prices for farm products. Instead of on the basis of the probable demand at harvest time. The outlook is aimed at strengthening economic information pertaining to our agricultural industry, and has been set up by the bureau, and a staff of foremost agricultural economists employed to do the work for the benefit of farmers and producers and consumers."

Preliminary estimates of the company show net income for 1928 amounted to $5,8 322, equal to $

NEW HAVEN IS 'EXPECTED' TO SELL AT $100

Female, Alone, Capable of Reproducing Life

Cleveland, Jan. 18 (AP)—The female element in reproduction is alone sufficient to produce a new organism, Prof. Albert Brachet, of the University of Brussels, told the Cleveland Academy of Medicine.

Numerous experiments in which life had been induced, followed by methods by growth, through laboratory treatment of the female egg were cited, but the noted histologist and authority on embryology said tests could not be connected with human beings.

"Take a female frog's egg, unfertilized, and puncture it with a minute glass point," he said, "and it will begin to grow. Take the female egg of the sea urchin and treat it with a certain acid and that develops.

"We have found the female element in reproduction is sufficient to produce the new organism. The male addition merely gives it individuality, the residue of its sustenance."

Prof. Brachet said the only social significance of his discoveries is in their influence on health laws, saying the line of approved practices and such as would build up general health.

FRECKLES FINDS THE ANGEL

By Jeannette Stratton Porter

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

What Has Happened So Far

Brought up in an orphan asylum a handsome red-headed Irish boy known as Freckles finds a friend and protector in Jim McLean, boss of a lumber camp. There Freckles meets his "Angel," a beautiful American girl, whom he saves from a falling tree. Discovering Freckles to be the long lost heir of Lord O'More, Freckles is sent back to his own people.

Now go on With the Story

CHAPTER 5

AFTER Mr. McLean left the Bank, the Man of Affairs sat in deep thought for a time. He felt sorry for McLean; he was so honest, so straightforward, he worked so diligently, and had so little of joy or pleasure in his life.

McLean loved Freckles as he would have loved a son of his own. When the O'More's arrived and claimed him, McLean let the boy go without a murmur.

At home Dad found the Angel and his wife awaiting him.

"What did Mr. McLean say, Dad?"

"He left Freckles' present problem entirely with me," he said at last. "I'll tell him into it, and it was up to him to put him out."

"Let's ask him to dinner, Mother. It will be better for him than spending the evening alone."

And Dad Woman went to the telephone, in a few minutes she was back.

The clerk at the hotel said Mr. McLean was not there; that he had left in a hurry on the four o'clock train for Chicago.

"I don't know what we do in this case affects us alone," asked Angel, "just because Freckles has a bit of temporary mental aberration, Mr. McLean is frantic, you and I did not do wrong, I am all upset, and poor Dick looks grieved."

"What about Dick?" asked Dad, quickly.

"Well, I may as well own up first as last for I suppose I'm a dirty trick. Just when I felt deserted and almost Dick proved to me he seemed so humble and so reliable, and I—you spoiled him."

"Why, Angel, how could you?"

"I don't know, I'm sure—my pride I guess. I have no excuse to offer. It was just when I was getting settled for myself and most obsessed with Freckles. I suppose my idea was to 'get even' with him. It was common and cheap. Dick is my child, I have to own it to myself."

"How unworthy of you, Angel," said Dad Mother.

"Oh, please don't rub it in; no one knows that quite so well as I do; will be left loosing me. I know I could not go through with it—that's all."

"You must tell him at once, and let him amends you can," advised Dad.

"I have already told him, and I told him all about Freckles; I felt that I owed him a full explanation. He was pretty blunt, but I think him I think he won't get over it for a long time, and neither will I."

* * *

The shadows were lengthening on the road and a few early stars were peeping through the twilight, as Barlow let himself out the door.

Again Her Voice Penetrated His Brain: 'Good Boy, Freckles'

When Barlow reached home, he carried the bundle to his room and unwrapped it with great care. He unlocked his trunk, and took out the Angel's picture in package; for the next half hour he was very busy.

When the family had departed for their ride Freckles dozed. His thoughts, waking or sleeping, were always of the Angel.

So would any kind Lad come from America since she had gotten his letter. What must they think of him; how cowardly he had been to allow himself to be defeated, and then acknowledge it to the Angel, to her parents, and to her dear boys. All lost!

He must prove worthy of their belief in him; he would break loose from this confounded narrow, life existence, and make a man of himself. Then he would go to them and tell them what he had done. If the Angel had waited for him, he would be up before a bigger job she had not; he was to blame; but he would let her, and his other dear ones, see that at last their faith in him had not been in vain.

He was waking through the Limberlost now, as he had walked years ago—the Angel was seated in his room in the swamp—the sun played instead—sick with her golden curls—her cheeks were flushed and her eyes were sparkling with excitement—she was twanging her banjo in accompaniment to a simple Irish song.

Then the Angel's voice:

"Oh, sing low, sweet Thrush,
Oh, sing low,
You see the Shamrock grows—"

The voice broke suddenly—and his hands crashed suddenly—God! he did hear her voice! It was coming through his half-open door. He cautiously bit his finger to see if he was awake, and he was. He raised himself slightly on one elbow, and listened. It was her voice, and she was saying, "Freckles, shame on you! You're not trying! Look me in the eye! Now you square your shoulders; throw out your chest; lift up your head; and sing. Come now, once more."

Freckles was sitting up now, with his arms stretched toward the door, as if he expected the Angel to walk through it. There was a divine light on his face; his thoughts flew back to that other day, long ago, when she had said those very words to him.

Again her voice penetrated his bewildered brain: "Good boy, Freckles, I'm proud of you—you will be a great singer and when you are please do not forget your friends in the Limberlost. We love you—we miss you—we are waiting for you."

And once more on a the lilting melody; the soft, sweet voice, accompanied by the strumming banjo.

Again his thoughts wandered to that day long ago. The Angel had kissed his forehead in her pride and enthusiasm. Even now he put up a cautious hand, as if to see if he could feel it.

Barlow was watching through the door, his eyes streaming as he bended down his cheeks, and drooping on his coat. His purpose in the city had been a portable Victrola; the contents of the Angel's package had been a record singing her two days' stay in Chicago with her mother. Barlow had carried it into Freckles' sitting room, and left the door open.

Freckles was apparently sleeping good enough, the music would waken him, he turned the machine lever and waited. Here was his reward for the two lies, his fight with Kathleen, his trip. Just one look at the boy's transfigured face, made up for everything. He wound up the machine, set the needle, started it again, and went softly into the room. Then Freckles sang, too.

"Barlow," gasped the boy, "what is it? Am I delirious again? Is it a miracle, or am I just hearing things? Is it really my darling Angel's voice?"

Barlow explained.

"Such a voice as you have, sir! Way do you never sing? Some music in this old house would be a blessing for us all."

"I couldn't bear the thought of singing after I'd left the only home and friends I'd ever had. I have not sung since the last song I sang for the Angel, four years ago. She discovered my voice, and made me sing for her, playing accompaniments for me on her banjo. But tell me—when did this record come? Wasn't it addressed to me? Why didn't I get it?"

Again Barlow explained. "But don't fret yourself about Miss Kathleen, sir. Just think about the Angel, and be happy. Can you stay sing, sir?"

"I don't know, Barlow, but I feel inspired to try if you'll mope that Please Turn to Page 24, Column 3.

SIX ARE INJURED AS BOMB EXPLODES

'REVENGE' IN DETROIT OUTRAGE

Detroit, Jan. 18 (AP)—Six persons were injured seriously and a furniture store, a motion picture theater, a grocery and a restaurant were destroyed by an explosion at Gratiot and Harper aves, shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. The damage was estimated at $150,000. No one was killed.

Police believe the first was planned as reprisal for the fatal shooting of an Italian marcher in a Columbus Day parade here last October.

Two of the injured are under police guard in a hospital for questioning and a third man found lying in the vicinity is held for investigation.

Detectives investigating the blast said it was caused by gasoline from drums of which were found in the alley behind the furniture store.

The seriously injured are Joe Zanzaro, 36, and Philip Cusmano, 25, held as police prisoners in a hospital; Mrs. Harriet Universoss, 35; Mrs. Elsie Miller, 32; Harry Cohen, 38, and Frank Young, 62. Zanzaro and Cusmano were pinned under the wreckage.

The third man held in Giuliano Pecorino, 32. He was hiding in the vicinity.

Search is being made for John Garrisi, 45, proprietor of the furniture store. He has not been seen since he left his home for the city early today after having received several threatening letters.

Besides the buildings destroyed, several other places in Gratiot, a branch bank, a bakery, a hotel and a dry goods store were damaged by the explosion.

With nearly 100 passengers on board the Robert E. Lee of the Eastern steamship Lines, en route here from New York, was fog bound and the half hour's delay in the transit of the vessel cost a loss of $50 a minute, or the staggering total of $3,000.

Due to dock here at 8:30 a. m. the vessel did not get under way at the canal entrance until 10 a. m. and officials then scheduled her arrival for 5 p. m.

This was the second time in three days that the Robert E. Lee was forced to anchor one day on the Weir at the entrance to the canal on the same trip.

A confusion of signals with seamen was officially reported to the Eastern Steamship Lines here this morning. Fog and city officials faced the unhappy prospect of countless becoming immeasurable woes.

Debutantes Set that has evolved [illegible] to dine and to sup in a ballroom wherein no single [illegible] whatsoever. Deleted from Supper Dance [illegible] menus crop of somethings, a decree most wisely made by [illegible] or two ago and infinitely to the liking of [illegible]

BY FAR THE LARGEST PARTY [illegible] evening, having Mrs. Paul Pratt Comstock as hostess, [illegible] Miss Ruth Bartlett honors on a group [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Morgan for [illegible] reservations [illegible] seven; Miss Elizabeth Sturtevant enter [illegible] Miss Sylvia Weld [illegible] coming people; Miss Barbara Rust will have 14; Miss [illegible] 12, and Mrs. H. Vinton Cutler has 14. W. H. [illegible] chooses places for 20, Miss Nancy Patten for eight, Miss Lorraine Garfield for 12 and Miss Virginia Ames for ten.

RECENT BRIDES AND PROSPECTIVE brides figure in [illegible] Supper Dance of the Vincent Club. Mrs. Everett Morss, Jr., the former Miss Anne Wentworth, makes a first hostess appearance as a matron. She and her spouse will entertain for a dozen guests. Miss Helen Rust will be the [illegible] among brides at the dance, as her honor guest will be her intended, Francis [illegible] Fessenden, over from New York for the party, and her supper group will number 14. The slender and pretty Miss Rust will be the most [illegible] of brides when she and Mr. Fessenden are wed on February [illegible]. And an attractive group of maids and matrons attend her.

AS A GROUP IT IS SUPERLATIVELY interesting, and individually it is distinctive. Miss Virginia Ayres, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Paul Drummond Rust, in Hannah McEwan), as matron of honor, lead off in importance [illegible] courage for the bride.

Mrs. Frederick Wadsworth Bush is joining the exodus to the South. She will be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sewall Fessenden, in Florida.

Miss Evelyn Ames, Miss Evelyn Rorce, Miss Edith Wolcott and Miss Elsabeth Moulton are a foursome perfectly equipped with poise and good looks to wear bridesmaid gowns effectively. Miss Lorraine Liggett, a future bride; Miss Mary Ames also a future bride; Mrs. William C. Cox and Mrs. Philip Smith, very recent brides, will be in attendance

FROM NEW YORK COMES MRS. WILLIAM H. OSBORNE, SIR LA FARGE'S sister, to be in the wedding group. And, from Richmond, Miss Mary Tucker comes, to complete the entourage. Miss Rust is the daughter of the Paul Drummond Rusts of Commonwealth ave., and shines brightly in the Younger Set firmament, having moved serenely into the coveted high place Vincent Club and Junior League memberships bestow on the feminine of the social species. In last spring's Vincent Show she displayed talents as a tap dancer well up professional, and was a decided [illegible] of [illegible].

TURNING ONE'S BACK ON GRIM NORTHERN SKIES FOR SEAS that are blue and winds that are balmy becomes a delightfully frequent episode to the traveling public. Nassau lies sweetly within the tropic warmth and to it Bostonians are flocking. Two Matsarge now beside south to the Bahamas carrying a sun-seeking company. Ward Thorndike of Marlborough st. is a passenger aboard the steamship, and Mr. John F. Stevens with Mrs. Stevens are aboard [illegible] Geoffrey going back to the more or less [illegible] tropics. At one time he was chairman of the Isthmian Canal Commission.

PERHAPS THERE IS MAGIC IN THE NAME OF MRS. JOSEPH W. WOODS. Or it may be that this slender and dynamic young matron has at fingers' end the art of ticket disposal. Whatever the cause, the effect of her connection with a benefit is that tickets go like the proverbial hot cakes, as they are going for the Elizabeth Peabody House benefit at the Arena. A brisk and lively, and entirely heartening advance sale is going on, so that even so immense a seating capacity as the Arena provides will reach the exhaustion point well before the date arrives, Jan. 30, when the Boston Skating Club stages the one and only ice carnival of the season.

THE SKATING CLUB'S MEMBERSHIP RUNS THE GAMUT, FROM fledgling to patriarch. And, naturally, the small ones of the club so earnestly practicing their double spirals and their pirouettes will be the prime attractions of the carnival. Little Miss Phyllis Howe and little Miss Audrey Butler make a pair, to the children's dances. Miss Polly [illegible] has a number, and so does Miss Frances Koshland. Russian magnificence and color effect, the motif of the carnival, provide the widest range for artistic fancy to wander in, and some striking costumes dress up the occasion, from the torchlight parade in the beginning to the final star act on the program.

THE ICE BALLET WILL BE SPECTACULAR, AND MARVELOUSLY performed, with direction by Miss Dorothy Weld, Miss Grace Madden and Miss Maribel Vinson. By no means complete is the list of skaters, but some of the Club's bigger will skate a la sweep—Miss Polly Beale, Miss Kirsten Wadsworth, Miss Peggy Wadsworth, Miss Frances Johnson, Miss Ruth Koshland, Miss Mary Barker, Miss Serita Barrett, Miss Gwyneth Butler, Miss Faith Garrison, Miss Lydia Lord, Miss Suzanne Davis and Miss Prudence Jones. Also on the list of directors, the Misses Weld, Vinson and Madden.

GRACEFUL AND BRILLIANT WILL BE THE NUMBER CALLED "Combined Spirals." A half dozen couples perform. Lancers on the ice will tax the talents of even the skating stars. Miss Martha P. Brown, Mrs. Channing Frothingham and Arthur M. Goodridge direct. And the couples are Mrs. Frothingham and Dr. Maynard Rees, Miss Brown and Albert Norris, Gertrude Fiske and Charles M. Roth, the Skating Club president; Miss Elaine Goodridge and [illegible] Miss Grace Madden and Gregory [illegible], Miss Catherine Hopkins and Frederick Goodridge; Miss Suzanne Davis and Robert [illegible], Miss Dorothy Weld and Richard L. Hapgood.

AND OVER ALL, THROUGHOUT THE HOURS OF PREPARATION and on the evening itself, sparkle and play the genius of Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard, premiere skater of the Club, and its pride and hope whenever international or national championships are to be contested for. Mrs. Blanchard and her skating partner, Nathaniel Niles, are the "Court Fairs" who perform between the Grand Dame, the Grand Duchess, the Courtiers and those who have come to the carnival.

STRENUOUS YOUNG WOMEN FOR WHOM A SQUASH RACQUETS court exerts far more lure than do sun-tippled sands to lounge on, [illegible] battle through exciting half hours of spirited games at the Harvard Club. Miss Eleonora Sears and Miss Georgia Wightman are veterans always to be counted on to give the rooters a thrill—two gallant, lusty, like Romans of old, [illegible] upon [illegible] into the arena. But the old Romans never encountered an [illegible] opponent of [illegible] sport as are these modern examples.

DEMPSEY PUTS FOOT DOWN ON STRIBLING

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 18 (AP)—Jack Dempsey, Basinos, the promoter of the Stribling-Sharkey fight in Miami Beach, Fla., today announced he would permit Young Stribling to engage in any matches after January 24.

A fight scheduled for Stribling with Jack McAuliffe of Detroit in Atlanta January 28 has been called off because of illness, it was announced. Dempsey said he would not allow Stribling to engage in any matches after January 24 unless the Georgian won a decision over Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light-heavyweight, in their scheduled ten-round bout in Miami Beach February 11.

Dempsey will insist that Stribling meet Loughran in Atlanta before February 24 or not later than February 1.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

SIR ROBERT GOLDMAN, senior member of the firm of Goldman & Mello, was in a very happy mood as he watched his junior partner trade punches with one Larry Brignolia in the rather big fly padded ring of Jim Toland's le luxe gymnasium.

Sir Robert has reason to be thankful. In the first place he has just layored an attack of flu which might have interfered with his enjoyment of his second millions, and then the junior member of the firm is to trade blows with Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, at the Boston Garden a week from tonight.

Mr. Boston chased himself over to where Sir Robert was standing.

[illegible]

"Mello has been fighting steadily, and is ready for the big test with Dundee. Even though Al will be obliged to enter the ring above the welterweight limit of 147 pounds, he will be generally recognized as the world's champion if he wins.

"After Al polishes off the champ, we'll demand a title shot with Dundee in New York. You may write it in the book that Mello will lick Dundee or any of the other carefree welterweights."

"The boxing game is apparently prosperous," said Mr. Boston "[illegible]

LOMSKI 7 TO 5 CHOICE OVER BRADDOCK

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—Lou Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., will be a 7 to 5 favorite over James J. Braddock of Jersey City, when they enter the ring in Madison Square Garden tonight for a 10-round battle.

Braddock was on the short end of the betting when he recently knocked out the highly touted Sioux City light heavyweight Tuffy Griffiths in two rounds.

Lomski is one of the best of the present crop of light heavyweights. A crowding, pounding, tearing type of fighter he has [illegible] with the best [illegible] the [illegible] Tommy Loughran [illegible] Lomski [illegible] keep the [illegible] down, box and [illegible] and [illegible] his way [illegible]

Tex Lost Fortune in Few Short Hours

By JACK LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1929, by New York American and Universal Service, Inc.

THOSE well-heeled gamblers who came down from Circle City to have a fling at Tex Rickard's gaming tables in Dawson City certainly brought their luck with them.

They simply couldn't lose. Every play they made turned to gold—and it was Rickard's gold. For once Rickard's traditional luck deserted him.

But Tex was game. He backed his guess and lost millions of dollars. Then he put it, the whole stake, and that went, too.

The SKY RAIDER by COL. LINDBERGH'S FLYING AIDE Donald E. Keyhoe

A Thrilling Mystery Story of Love and Danger

What Has Happened So Far

On his first day in the Air Mail Service, Dick Trent seems doomed to disappointment. A heavy snow storm causes Carmichael, the station superintendent, to cancel arrangements for Dick's first flight alone across the Rocky Mountains. Suddenly the door opens. Old Rand, owner of the service and his daughter, enter. He has an important letter for his son Dick offers to fly through with it. As the old man hesitates the daughter says she believes Dick can get through the dangerous pass. Thrilled by her show of confidence Dick soars into the storm still hearing the soft voice of the beautiful fur clad girl. By a miracle Dick negotiates the narrow pass through the Rockies. Arrived at his destination he seeks Tommy Rand. The address given him turns out to be a gambling house. Dick is refused entrance. By a ruse he enters finds Rand drinking and induces him to leave. The letter was a government report of censure for intoxication. Dick disobeying regulations, flies Tommy back to save him from dismissal. Carmichael sees them land. He threatens Dick with dismissal. Called to Rand's house, Dick hears praise for his work from the Old Man and finds he is in love with the daughter.

CHAPTER V

"WHAT'S on your mind, youngster?" Lawson Lad asked the next morning, when Dick had appeared at the fliers' hangout, exhibiting every possible sign of restlessness.

"Nothing. Not a thing," Dick had answered, going to the doorway once more to stare out at Rand Field.

Mechanics moved between the sheds, worked on planes at the company offices there were signs of activity, a plane buzzed overhead like the sound of a gigantic drill. Not a cloud in the frosty, blue expanse of sky.

Dick's eyes narrowed like a sailor's as they searched the field. They did not find what they sought.

BAER FACTS :-: By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WALL STREET had a quiet session last week.

It settled down to abnormal.

There were a few well-groomed panics, seven or eight corners in winter cement and only a gross or two of assorted mergers.

We don't tumble to this merger business, but it seems to be important. This symptom of the investment college is what is known as a healthy reaction.

When a clam is tossed into the chowder he is merged. If he gets out again it is a healthy reaction.

Last week we bought two shares in American Vestless Button and put it away in the safety deposit waste basket.

We watched the ticker very closely, as we heard rumors of a big shakeup in the Street. Some prominent men were going to do something big. Put a mustard plaster on the Palisades, or something.

Vestless Button started throwing off dividends, one button at a time.

The next thing we heard was that Vestless Button had been merged with Indoor Harvest Machinery.

That made us a stockholder in two very strong corporations. We didn't know whether Vestless Button had absorbed Indoor Harvest or whether the parent company had eaten Mr. and Mrs. Young.

But our Board of Directors held their annual parade through cheering aisles of disgruntled stockholders who objected to a marriage without a honeymoon.

The merger paid two for one. Which means they pay two other guys instead of you. For every share in Vestless Button the stockholders got two shares in Indoor Harvest and were on the road to get rich if it hadn't been for the Detour signs.

That made two Boards of Directors, one to suggest and the other to do the heavy nodding.

We now owned four shares in Indoor Harvest, which got so successful that it was merged with Public Toothbrush of Arizona. The president of Vestless Button was promoted to office boy of Public Toothbrush. He had his picture printed in the Wall Street Journal alongside of Jackie Coogan under the caption, "Success came to them late in life."

The second merger paid three for one. So we now owned 12 shares of Public Toothbrush, paid-up and non-profit-sharing.

This company was merged with Old-Fashioned Mustache Cup, under the trade name of Gulp-Refining Company.

That was a ten-to-one proposition. Everybody who started with two shares of Vestless Button became the owner of 120 shares of Gulp Refinery.

Merger followed merger, until now we own sixteen hundred thousand shares of Sun-Kissed Mushrooms.

They say that Sun-Kissed Mushrooms would hea very good investment if it were not for the fact that mushrooms will not grow in the sun.

MAKING OF DREAMS

By Louis E. Bisch, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

DREAMS have always been a puzzle to man, but always they have been fascinating.

In the olden days people often had a superstitious reverence for dreams. The soothsayers who interpreted them practiced a respected calling. It has occurred time and again that a war or a national policy was determined by the prophetic meaning given to the dream of the reigning monarch.

In this day and age there are those who still believe that dreams foretell the future. There are also those who ascribe no value to them whatsoever.

Psychologists, however, recognize that our dreams can yield a world of information about ourselves, about our true natures, about what is going on in that deeper mind of ours, the unconscious.

In fact the dream is really the royal road to the unconscious.

When we sleep consciousness is blotted out. What we dream is unconscious or subconscious thinking.

Usually we dream about occurrences that somehow impressed us during the preceding two or three days. We do not, however, dream of them as they actually happened. We use the occurrences as dream material, but we dream it in a way that is different and distorted from the way we originally experienced it.

For instance, I am walking along the street and I hear the clang of the fire engines. I look around and see that on the tenth floor of the skyscraper across the street smoke is pouring from the windows.

That same night, or a night or two later, I dream of a fire. But I do not dream it as I saw it. I dream of the skyscraper as a church steeple and the fire engines as airplanes instead of motor buses. In my dream, also, much material is added that did not occur at all in my daytime experience. I dream that the steeple seemed to grow out of a large lake, that as people jumped from the top they landed on the water as flowers.

Dreams often are bizarre and unusual. They are like what we experience in waking life and yet are unlike. Often they are exceedingly chaotic and mixed up. Sometimes they are pleasing, sometimes they frighten us, and we awake glad to find that it was "only a dream." Psychologists describe the events that have happened recently and somehow appear in the dream the "precipitating cause" of the dream.

But that the dream really stands for, what its unconscious meaning may be, constitutes the "underlying cause" of its "latent content."

Indigestion, thirst, or hunger, nervousness or excitement before retiring may also be precipitating causes for dreams.

Nevertheless, such causes do not tell the whole story. Always it is our unconscious thinking that makes the dream.

It is probable that all of us dream and every night. But we do not always recall that we have dreamt.

Often, also, we suspect that we had a dream or we can recall but a fleeting and tiny bit of it. But it escapes us and the harder we think about it the more difficult it seems to remember.

Why this is so I will relate tomorrow.

"The Bottle, or the Drunkard's Family."—By Cruikshank.

PLATE V—Often there was no food in the house; the walls weren't plastered, but the family was—and so they spent many a illarious evening, what with mother laughing until she cried, and the papa reciting Indian love lyrics, which he claimed to have written as a prank. But, somehow, little Wilebrandt, looking into the fire, had his doubts as to how all this would end. And, perhaps, in the dancing flames he saw visions of the future—who knows? Life is a funny proposition, after all, eh, Mister?

MOTHERS STOP! CHILDS COUGH

Colds, Coughs, Dangerou This Time of Year—Stop It Quick.

KIDS LIKE TO TAKE THIS SIMPLE REMEDY

"My children love to take the cough and cold remedy our old doctor recommended. It banishes a cold, fortifies them all winter, and helps their appetites."

There is no dope, alcohol, chloroform, etc., in it. A barrel of it would do no harm.

Almost like ice-cream and tastes so nice kids cry for Lin-O-Nine which contains wholesome, beneficial Oils of Flaxseed, Eucalyptus, Cassia, Benzin, Irish Moss and Glycerine, churned into a cream flavored with Wintergreen. Sim-Yum! It's good, the kiddies say, according to thousands of wise mothers who always have a bottle of Lin-O-Nine in the house. Better than Cod Liver Oil as a tonic and it tastes nice.

Doctors recommend Lin-O-Nine for grown-ups, too. 50c and $1.00 sizes at druggists, or send dollar bill for large 15-oz. bottle, parcel post return mail. Kerr Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been out with a young man so is about three years my senior a few times. He seemed to enjoy going with me. He was different from my other friends, and that's why I valued his friendship.

About a month ago, he called me up, at the store where I am a clerk. Just then, I was quite busy, and couldn't speak to him, so I told him to hold the wire. About ten minutes later I went to the phone but he must have hung up. I haven't heard from him since. Do you think he still cares? I hope he does, because I pray we will some day come together.

Please give me some advice. I would call him up, but I have too much pride. I think it would cheapen me.

I thank you kindly.

J. S. T. M.

IT is hard to hold a telephone wire for ten minutes. Possibly, your friend was cut off by Central. I really believe, under the circumstances, that a friendly little note of explanation to him, from you, would be kind and gracious.

Explain what happened just as you wrote it to me. Tell him you did not mean to be rude and that you hope you will soon see him in order to tell him how sorry you are that you were obliged to wait so long before going to the phone.

It really is wiser, my dear, to receive personal social messages over your home telephone rather than at your place of business.

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

STEINITE CO. TO EXPAND

The New England group of Stein-ite jobbers who have just returned from the recent convention held in the Stevens Hotel in Chicago, report elaborate plans of expansion already under way to meet the demands of an enormous production program during the current year, jobbers and sales representatives were on hand from every section of the United States.

The occasion was the showing of the new line of Steinite receiving sets and dynamic speakers, and the laying out of the sales plan for 1929. A sales quota was set for $20,000,000, and such was the tremendous enthusiasm of the jobbers present that orders were placed in excess of the quota.

Oscar Getz, vice-president of several sales managers, made the principal address, and announced the fact that a tremendous plan of expansion had been put into effect. Steinite has taken over the old E. Meier Co. manufacturers of dynamic speakers, condensers and parts. It has also acquired an additional plant of 25,000 square feet in Ft. Wayne, Ind., and has been over the plant of a prominent cabinet manufacturer in Grand Rapids, Mich. These additional plants are within the present Steinite plant situated in Audubon Rd., will quadruple Steinite's production facilities.

Another feature of importance was the announcement that the services of Alfred Crossley, formerly of the United States Naval Research Laboratories, had been secured to head a big group of radio engineers at the Steinite plant.

NEWSIES TRYING TRICK SHOTS

Interest in billiards at the Boroughs Foundation on Beacon Hill was stimulated today as a result of an international exhibition by Willie Hoppe of America and Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan before a large number of newsboys.

Both Hoppe and Matsuyama were in good form and they held the youngsters spellbound. It was for the purpose of increasing the boys' interest in the game that Burroughs arranged for the appearance of the two stars. At the end of the exhibition the boys gave them three cheers and their familiar whistle.

MELODIES IN PARIS HOUR

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

A NICE PROGRAM, or at least a program with its scene laid in Nice, French Riviera, will be given by the artists of the "Evening in Paris" hour through WEEI and the Red Network at 9 o'clock tonight. For some weeks past, this entertaining feature has wandered as far out of a letter which permitted it to many points many hundred miles distant from the gay capital on the Seine. Programs have not suffered in the process, however. One of the startling promises for tonight is a French tango of Hungarian influence. It sounds like a goulache in prospect, but maybe the thing itself will be appetizing. Another number is "Un Soir a Simandre," or "A Night at Singapore," a French composition "written in the American idiom," whatever that is.

ENNA JETTICK MELODIES

SONGS by Brahms and Verdi will be rendered by the Enna Jettick melodies at 8:45 tonight over WNAC and the Columbia System. The complete program: Home Sweet Home, orchestra; Come to the Fair (Martin), mixed quartet and orchestra; Oh, My Darling Clementine, male quartet and orchestra; Cradle Song (Brahms), soli, duo and orchestra; Home to Our Mountains, from Rigoletto (Verdi), mixed quartet and orchestra; Moon Tonight in Dreamland, male quartet and orchestra.

PHILCO HOUR

EXCERPTS from operettas will be sung by Revaya Dragonette, soprano, and John O'More, tenor, during the Philco hour, broadcast through the Blue Network. Miss Dragonette is heard in "When Love Is Waiting," followed by Mr. O'More in "I Call You Back to Me." Both numbers being taken from "Lilac Domino." The singers will present a duet, "Then comes Dawning," as one of the excerpts from "Orange Blossoms."

CRYSTAL GAZER

THE PROGRAM for the Crystal Gazer half hour on WNAC at 8 includes: West of the Great Divide, contralto and orchestra; Roll, Crazy Rhythm, from "Here's How," orchestra; In a Chinese Temple Garden, orchestra; Kerry Mills' How Can I Wait—from the "Gesha," tenor and orchestra; Jones, Go, but You've Been Mean to Me, contralto and orchestra; Collings' If'n You Love Me?—from "Sunny," contralto, baritone and orchestra; Kern's Sunny—from "Sunny," orchestra; Kern's Well Did I Know Home in the Morning—from "Take the Air," orchestra with contralto, baritone choruses.

CITIES SERVICE

SAINT-SAENS' "Bacchanale" from "Samson et Dalila" is the symphonic feature of the weekly Cities Service Hour on WEEI and stations of the NBC System at 8:30 o'clock. Another highlight is the Dvorak "Slavonic Dance" in D Major. Dan Liberfeld, solo pianist, will be featured in "Sapphire," with orchestral accompaniment, and there will be also a musical novelty, "Southern Wedding," by Lotter.

The Cities Service Cavaliers will sing "In the Gloaming" and a negro melody "Standing in de Need of Prayer."

CONCERT HOUR

DOUGLAS STANBURY, tenor; Marie Montana, coloratura soprano; Eugene Mainolfini, contralto, and Lee Hanisch—Misses Wells and Hunsicker are the featured soloists of the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau Hour through the Red network at 10 o'clock. The National Concert Orchestra, under the direction of Cesare Sodero, will be heard in orchestral features and the instrumental accompaniments for the soloists.

RADIO RIB TICKLERS

WBET—This patter heard from the Metropolitan by Mrs. Jervis of Somerville isn't so punk, she thinks:

"I thought you ordered punkin pie in that restaurant. You got apple."

"I did, but that was O.K. All the pies are punk in that restaurant."

WBZA—Here's a fast one sent in by Police Brune of Waltham.

"You are charged with exceeding the speed limit last night. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Well, you can decide for yourself, judge. I was in the car you passed just before they pinched me."

Send in to the Boston Evening American Radio Department the best jokes and amusing incidents which you hear over the radio. For every contribution printed, a prize of one dollar will be sent to the writer.

LAUDS GOODWIN'S BILL

FAVORED BY CHELSEA'S MAYOR

"A State fund to provide compulsory automobile insurance at cost, is the proper way of taking care of this matter," said Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea, in endorsing the bill filed in the Massachusetts Legislature by Frank A. Goodwin and the Boston Evening American.

Massachusetts motorists will save $1,000,000 annually if the Goodwin-American bill, which calls for a state fund to give compulsory automobile insurance at cost, becomes law, figured in this survey is $5,000,000 now paid to insurance agents as commissions.

"The bill is perfect, in my opinion, with the exception of one thing," cited Mayor Quigley. "I fully agree with him that compulsory automobile insurance should be given at cost by means of a State fund, but I believe that this fund should be used by a gasoline tax.

INDORSES BILL.

"Instead of the present gas tax of two cents a gallon, I think a gas tax of five cents a gallon should be established, the extra three cents to be used to create a State Fund to take care of persons injured or killed by automobiles in this State.

"If the legislators do not agree with me, my contention as to the gas tax method or raising the proposed State fund, I would like to see them pass the bill.

"There is no doubt in my mind but the present method of charging of monies and by a graduated rate, according to the power of the car, is wrong. The zone system, in my opinion, is very unfair to motorists.

"Chelsea is in zone 1, and therefore the motorists are paying the higher rate.

"It does not seem just to charge a man living in this city 35 a year more for compulsory insurance on a particular make car, than the man a few miles away in Malden. It may seem all right in theory to those responsible for setting up these rates but in reality it does not work out well in practice and the care-owner of Chelsea will never agree that it does. The system is unfair, unjust and discriminating."

FAVORED BY LEADERS

"As I said before, I think the ideal way of working the matter will be handled by the manufacturers, is by means of an addition of three cents to the present gas tax, but if the legislature think that my idea, as outlined in a bill which I filed, is not so good as that of another registering all motor vehicles, of a flat rate for all passenger cars, another flat rate for trucks and a third for buses, rental cars and taxis, then I hope they pass his bill.

Following the lead of Martin T. Joyce, legislative agent of the Massachusetts branch, American Federation of Labor, in strongly endorsing the Goodwin-American bill, many other labor leaders are favoring the proposal.

Theodore F. Fobbe, secretary of Local No. 7, Bakery and Confectionery Workers, International Union of America, said:

"As an automobile owner for 32 years, and having run a car for that length of time without an accident, I was very glad to read in the Boston Evening American of the bill which will cut the compulsory automobile insurance rates.

"I will watch the progress of this proposed legislation and keep the members of my organization informed. I wish Frank Goodwin and the Boston Evening American success in this fine undertaking in behalf of the people."

ELIMINATES ZONES

Under the terms of the bill, the owner of a passenger car would pay $15 additional when the certificate of registration is issued, regardless of where he garages his machine or what its power might be.

This would do away with the present sliding-scale as to power and eliminate the zoning system, whereby motorists living in one city or town are charged many dollars more than their neighbors a block away in another city or town, to the same make car.

The former registrar's proposed new calls for a flat rate of $25 on all trucks, wherever garaged and regardless of power, and $20 on all taxis, rental cars and busses.

These proposed changes would establish a fund of $12,367,804 which would be sufficient to settle all claims for injuries and deaths due to automobile accidents in Massachusetts.

Former Registrar Goodwin says this sum would take care of all the expense connected with the investigation, adjustment, administration of the fund by a board of three commissioners, to be appointed by the governor and council, etc.

Instead of paying this sum in 1929 the motorists of Massachusetts will pay to private insurance companies $20,000,000 for compulsory automobile insurance. Don't you think $7,500,000 is worth saving in one year, to motorists? Let us know how you feel about it. If you know of any injustices resulting from the present law, of any fake claims that insurance companies have settled, or anything else pertinent to the subject, write the Boston Evening American. Direct your letter to "Compulsory Automobile Insurance Editor."

410 TEAMS SIGN FOR HEARST TROPHIES

The number of entries in the 1929 National R. O. T. C. Rifle Match for the William Randolph Hearst trophies has broken the records of all previous years, it was announced today by Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding the Sixth Corps Area.

So widespread an interest has been demonstrated in the match that Gen. Malone has already increased the number of the stiff course, which will have charge of recording and scoring the targets.

410 TEAMS ENTERED

Up to the present time 410 teams have been entered. They will represent schools in all parts of the United States and its dependencies.

So keen has been eligibility competition in New York and elsewhere that several schools have entered two teams. Among the institutions so doing is the Dewitt Clinton high school, New York City.

McKinley high school and the University of Hawaii, both of Honolulu, made their official entries recently. Mckinley high will have two teams in the competition.

Firing for record will be done between February 15 and April 30. All targets will be judged by the commanding officer of the Sixth Corps Area at Chicago. He will later announce the national and sectional winners.

MORE THAN EVER

The total number of schools that have entered teams is, to date, 210. With the start of the match almost a year away, 18 more teams are now registered than were registered in any one year.

Oklahoma Military Academy at Claremore, Okla., and Allen Academy at Bryan, Texas, are among the newest entries in the military academy class.

Other institutions whose teams have lately signed up include the Michigan State College of Agriculture, the University of Nebraska, State College, Pa., Virginia Polytechnic Institute, the University of Minnesota, Montana State College, and the Colorado School of Mines.

Legion Commander in Hub Tomorrow

Arrangements have been completed for the reception tomorrow to the national commander of the American Legion, Paul V. McNutt, of Indianapolis, which will be featured by the annual get-together banquet of the State Department of the Legion tomorrow night at the Hotel Statler.

Commander McNutt is due to arrive at the North Station from Worcester at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, and he will be escorted to the State House and thence to City Hall, and at noon will be tendered a luncheon by Governor Allen.

Commander McNutt will visit the Veterans' Hospital at Bedford Sunday morning and in the afternoon will be the guest of the Lawrence Post, American Legion, at a conference. Plans have been made for a big parade in Lawrence.

Police "Ringing In" Schedule Changed

Chief John J. McBride of Cambridge has ordered his officers to report at the stations at 10 minutes earlier than in the past under a plan for more efficient service.

Beginning Sunday and thereafter calls will come into the station at five-minute intervals, and in an emergency officers can be dispatched more quickly.

Under the new plan officers ring in at 5 and 35, 10 and 40, 15 and 45, 20 and 50, 25 and 55 minutes past the hour. The old system had them ringing in at intervals of 15 minutes.

CATHOLIC UNION ANNUAL BALL JANUARY 25

Members of the Catholic Union will hold their annual ball Jan. 25 at the Hotel Statler.

Committee chairmen are: Invitation, Edward J. O'Neil; reception, Charles J. Cronin; publicity, Adolph T. Jouannet; printing, George A. Cronin; music, John A. Kelley, and floor committee, Charles A. Winchester.

The Catholic Union has existed over 59 years and provides a meeting place for men in Metropolitan Boston and social activities for them. The charitable work of the Union was seen recently when the children from the Home for Destitute Catholic Children attended the annual Christmas party at which over 200 youngsters were entertained and sent back to the home with bags which contained many useful articles for their personal use.

The Union furnishes, through its library and periodical room, an opportunity for the young and older members to enjoy modern and classical literature.

This party, which has become an annual event, supplements the various social activities that are usually held in its hall.

Largest Owner of Cattle in U. S. Dead

Amarillo, Tex., Jan. 18 (AP)—Amarillo today mourned the loss of its first citizen, Mayor Lee Bivins, a cattleman and oil baron, who owned or held under lease for cattle grazing more than 1,000,000 acres of Texas and Mexico land. He was reputed to be the largest individual cattle owner in the United States.

The Mayor, who was fatally stricken with heart disease at Wichita Falls, was also a typical cowman in the strictest sense of the word, although he lived to see the endless herds of cattle replaced with towns, ranches and oil derricks.

Jugoslavia to Tax Bachelors Over 30

Nish, Jugoslavia, Jan. 18 (AP)—Bachelors more than 30 years old hereafter must pay the Nish district government a special tax for their lives of single blessedness. All adult citizens not members of some cultural, educational, charitable or patriotic association must pay an even higher penalty. Alcoholic drinks and all luxury articles will be heavily taxed.

It is expected that Belgrade, the capital of Jugoslavia, will follow the example of Nish by taxing bachelors.

Big Business Says:

"Come On"—and the Railroads Are Electrified

There is one good thing about Big Business, even such a big business as the Power Trust, accused of using schools, pliable professors and purchasable newspapers to stupefy the public minds.

Big business FORCES MATERIAL PROGRESS.

For instance, you notice that the Pennsylvania Railroad will electrify its system at a cost of $100,000,000 from Wilmington, Del., to New York City—preparing for 30,000,000 population in New York and suburbs by 1950.

And NOW you learn that the New York Central plans to electrify its lines all the way from Buffalo to New York, using the power of Niagara Falls to carry the cars over 500 miles of tracks.

That would surprise the Indians who owned the fails before we did. They little thought what power was tied up in the limited Niagara.

Big Business that owns railroads and the Big Business that controls power are closely related.

If the PEOPLE say to the railroads: "Why don't you electrify your roads, do away with smoke and ashes, give better service," the railroads say: "It is too EXPENSIVE."

But when big business of the power trust says: "Come on, junk those old steam locomotives, electrify your roads, let's all make money," that's a different story. The lines are electrified.

Also it must be added that modern railroad men of the right kind are really RAILROAD MEN, not stock jugglers, railroad wreckers or mere tools of high finance, as they once were.

They realize, as Mr. Charles Francis Murphy put it, that "to stay where you are, you have got to keep moving," and the real railroad men of the Pennsylvania, New York Central and other lines DO keep moving.

MISS TROUT AFTER BREAKING RECORD

Miss Bobbie Trout, eighteen-year-old student at the University of Southern California, sets a new endurance flight record for women, remaining in the air twelve hours five minutes.

They have many fine girls in California, from Helen Wills, of the tennis courts, to the wonderful Trout girl in the cold, upper streams of the air.

Two Americans—

And Their Millions

Many men, many minds, and only the Angel Gabriel has a right to criticize them.

John D. Rockefeller went to Europe, saw the magnificent Palace of Versailles falling into decay, and the beautiful Palace of Fontainebleau in need of repair. The French, after the war, were hard pressed for money.

He spent forty million francs on Versailles, and other millions at Fontainebleau. The French will not forget it.

Frank Gould, who inherited millions, went to Europe and invested $5,000,000 in a white marble gambling casino at Nice. Dispatches say he has difficulty in obtaining from the French Government a license to open it. There is a very successful gambling Casino just east of Nice, at Monte Carlo.

One American, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., spends millions to preserve for France, and all visitors to France, art treasures of inestimable value.

Another American spends his $5,000,000 on a white marble casino to promote gambling.

The French know the difference.

An Italian Genius

He Knows His Business

Italy's government runs smoothly. Of thirteen portfolios in his new Cabinet, Mussolini holds seven, foreign affairs, army, navy, internal affairs, aeronautics, corporations and colonies. He is also president of the Cabinet Council and "Supreme Head of the Fascists," which means boss of Italy.

The Italian is not afraid of responsibility, an important [illegible] great power.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOMETHING ought to be done to make the world safe for bachelors.

A man never knows, when he wakes up some morning, whether he is going to find the announcement of his engagement in the newspapers, and a marriage certificate under his pillow, or a breach-of-promise suit on his hands.

All this makes an eligible bachelor so nervous that he is afraid to go out alone—and unarmed!

Once, all a man had to do was to dodge temptation. And as "Temptation" was usually painted bright red and plainly labeled, it was a simple thing for a strong man to detour around it, and come up smiling, single and unentangled.

But that was in the days when the "dangerous woman" in a man's life was the worldly, designing siren bent on luring him to sin and destruction. Now, the "dangerous woman" in his life is the business-like little thing who is bent on luring him to the altar.

He never can tell when he is going to be "misunderstood"—and taken SERIOUSLY!

To him, the world appears full of highwaywomen, just lying in wait to hold him up and rob him of his freedom. It is no longer possible to distinguish a temptation from a danger, by the slenderness of its ankles, the brevity of its skirts or the rouge on its lips.

Its dare not, in his simple innocence, follow a pair of red heels or flashing calves down the street, for fear their owner may turn out to be, not the harmless adventuress she looks, but a perfect lady with matrimonial designs.

He can no longer bank on the girl with peroxide hair and mascaraed eyelashes to be just a good sport, who will accept his careless pettings in "the right spirit" and his kisses as just a little diversion. She is much more likely to turn out to be a serious-minded young woman, with her heart set on a wedding ring.

Now that all women wear warpaint, high-water skirts and exotic earrings, and use long cigarette holders, no man can tell a "safe" little vamp from a dangerous margrie!

Alas, a bachelor cannot feel absolutely safe, even with a married woman! For the first thing he knows, she may have divorced her husband, slipped her wedding ring and her slave bracelet, and be ready and waiting to ANNEX him!

No wonder bachelors are so NERVOUS!

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Money—money, like everything else—is a deception and a disappointment.—Wells.

Silence and modesty are very valuable qualities in conversation.—Montaigne.

Human nature craves novelty. —Pliny.

He who seizes on the moment, he is the right man.—Goethe.

The accent of one's country dwells in the mind and in the heart as much as in the language.—La Rochefoucauld.

"To him that lives well," answered the hermit, "every form of life is good."—Johnson.

Men are valued not for what they are, but for what they seem to be.—Lytton.

The law of worthy life is fundamentally the law of strife. It is only through labor and painful effort, by grim energy and resolute courage, that we move on to better things. —Roosevelt.

I do not value fortune. The love of labor is my sheet-anchor. I work that I may forget, and forgetting, I am happy. —Girard.

It's good to have money and the things that money can buy, but it's good, too, to check up once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things that money can't buy. —Lorimer.

People do not lack strength; they lack will. —Hugo.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

IT is good in the springtime to wander with laughter, adventuring gaily down paths all unknown with no thought for the winter whose storms must come after the last song is carolled, the last rose is blown; with no thought of the lonely, long hours that come only to lives [illegible] dance and sunlight have flown. But the wise take their springtime as birds do, for mating and for raising a brood that remembers its nest. So that after youth's years there will be no lore waiting, but only the glories that rise in the west when the sun is descending, the long day is ending, and life at its closing is life at its best.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

LOVE? Love with all your might.

Love, not because love is easy, but because love is hard.

Real love is perhaps the most difficult experience on earth.

It demands more of human nature than any other experience.

It demands constant growth and readjustment.

It demands unlimited generosity and tolerance.

These are difficult things to achieve or to give. But one can and truly love unless one gives them.

Real love will crack you out of the walls of self and hurl you into the current of another life. It will make you forget yourself—leave yourself. That is why love is the greatest blessing that can happen to you—as well as the most difficult experience.

FOR YOU CAN NEVER LIVE GREATLY UNLESS YOU ARE CRACKED OUT OF THE WALLS OF SELF—UNLESS YOU DO MERGE YOUR LIFE WITH OTHER LIVES.

Lives that do not love become bitter husks.

Long ago it was said, "He who would save his life must lose it."

When you truly love you lose your life in the lives of others and so you gain a greater life—for you live through them as well as through yourself.

Recently the Grand Duke Alexander, cousin of the late Czar Nicholas, spoke at the Town Hall in New York. He told of the tremendous change which was wrought by the revolution in the lives of many aristocratic Russians.

"I awoke one morning to find all my material possessions gone," he said. "But not my soul, which nothing can take from me. . . . The lesson of my life has taught me that only one power exists—love. . . . Only when we love can we give expression to the highest power and gain spiritual strength."

Only one power exists—or persists—and that is love.

Money loses its power to satisfy. Fame loses its power to thrill. Only one function will warm your heart and increase your life to the end—and that is love.

Love!

Love with all your might!

Love as many people as you possibly can.

Give yourself in wider and wider circles of sympathy until you embrace the whole world with your friendliness. Then you will no longer be living one life. Your life will be as wide as your love.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—Thoughts while strolling: The front of the Hotel Roosevelt is like an old-fashioned marble cake. The new apple juice stands are getting a play. Why do bowler-clad men wear derbies? University clubs and their overtone of rah-rah-rah! The white-haired boy who married one of George Gould's daughters.

A tea room with a sign "No Dogs"—and deserted. Don Marquis, a Walnut, Ill., boy, who made good in the city. Man with a banner: "I speak six languages but cannot get work." Sir Joseph Duveen, who knows all about art and pukkes it pay. And Lady Duveen. What's become of George Kelly, the playwright?

Those filmier limousines with scents for chauffeurs in the open. Maurice Watkins, who writes sophisticated plays and short stories. But wears her hair long and looks school marmish. Something pleasant about those old darkies who talk and smile to themselves along the street.

That Madam something-or-other with flaming red hair. And a millionaire husband. Scarcely a silent movie left. And most of us thought the talkies had dropped in for a chat. Daniel Frohman's scholarly goatee. A Boy Scout carries a lady's packages to her car. And refuses a tip.

DeWolf Hopper's son Jack—a banker. Man named Topp sells hats. And B. Glyde runs a skate shop. Those Cuban plantation owners with massive jewelry and fierce mustaches, who spend heavily along Broadway. The famous old "Dead Man's Curve" at 14th st. But safe for a blind man today.

The Chinese shops on lower Fifth ave. And one of the proprietors who sports a monocle. The fad for massaging machines must be a blow to hand masseurs. None of the great stars goes on a "farewell tour" any more. A faded sign of Dr. Munyon and his raised finger.

Snub-nosed debutantes with their wolfhounds aching for a little spotlight. Dance-school sign: "We teach the In-and-Out." Neysa McMein's husband—John Baragwanath. The red-faced cabbies who appear at dusk. The bank that photographs every check received and paid.

NOTED artists declare one of the most beautiful views in New York is from the southeastern entrance to Central Park at night when the myriad towers around the Plaza fountain burst into their thousand chinks of light. A contrast to the fairyland of stuccoed confusion in the velvety dark of the park and its tropical hush just a stone's throw away. Painters are coming from everywhere to catch the spirit of the scene on canvas. It's grand.

THE stage-struck flapper will not care about some recent chorus girl statistics. They show the average professional life of the chorine is three short years, with many weeks of idleness. Few are heard of after that. Only 150 chorus girls out of a 5,000 yearly crop progress to speaking parts, and most of these are just a few-line bits the public never remembers. This season 25,000 eager, wide-eyed maidens stormed theatrical producers. Most came from the mill towns, prairie cottage and Main Street. The chorus and brilliant marriage are linked in an illusive dream. In ten years only about the same number of girls from the chorus have married actual millionaires. And most of these tie-ups fizzled.

TEN years ago Albert Payson Terhune had never written a line of story. One week-end he had Ray Long, the magazine editor, as a house guest at his Pompton Lakes home. Under the influence of a great open fire and a well-lighted pipe, Terhune told of a gallant battle in the clearing between his dog Lad and a wolf one moonlight night. It was a hair raiser. "Write that for me," said Long, enthusiastically, at the conclusion. Since then Terhune has written several thousand dog stories and is the most famous of all in this line.

IN a hat store today a clerk with a you'll-buy-this-and-like-it manner was insisting upon giving a size dip to the brim of a hat on a gentleman with side whiskers who seemed a little too dignified for such kanoodling. "It is very Prince of Wales," said the salesman. And that touched off the most elegant bit of cussing I have heard since grandpop sold our team of Missouri mules.

ON INDIVIDUALITY

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

AFTER all, for each of us it is our own personality that counts. To say this is not to preach selfishness, for all altruism and all systems of co-operation and social unity are necessarily based on the individual.

But our present mechanical civilization and our "mass production" tend to debase the individual. Dr. Homer F. Swift has said something interesting on this subject, as follows:

"The worship of organization in this country has many dangers. To do big things, to encourage economic mass production, we form big machines which work more or less automatically. A man, at certain places in the machine, performs certain motions which the machine cannot be made to perform.

"But in doing this he becomes the slave of the machine; his actions depend upon those of the machine and hence becomes merely mechanical. In organizing hospitals, group clinics and educational institutions there is a comparable danger. Each individual has a set task and a rate of production imposed upon him by demands of the rest of the organization.

"This consumes so much of his energy that little is left to apply to independent thought. . . . Because applied science has made possible these wonderful and fearful machines, with their consequent demands, many persons are asking today whether science has not failed in its object to better man's condition.

"They recognize that materially he may be more comfortable and physically more healthful, but ask whether mentally he is superior to his predecessors and whether he has retained 'his freedom.'"

Dr. Swift is speaking as a scientist, a member of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, and in his exhibition of medicine as being an art as well as a science he, as many other representatives of his profession have recently done, is pleading for the development of individual thinking in the practice of the physician. The business of a scientist is analysis; that of the artist is synthesis.

"Not all of the art of medicine is at the bedside, nor all the science of medicine in the laboratory."

In other words, the instinct of the artist, which is an individual gift, must co-operate with that of the scientist in order that medicine, or any other form of knowledge, shall advance in acquirement and in technique.

The great discoverers in science have been artists in their methods. Skill in experimentation (the cornerstone of scientific method) is an expression of artistic power. Skill can only be developed by individual practice. What, then, if the individual be swallowed up in the mental darkness of mass production methods?

On the educational side the fight for individuality calls for the avoidance of these methods in dealing with "the evolution of the mental gifts of the young. This is very far from saying that pupils in the schools should be left at liberty to chose their own studies. Quite the contrary.

But on the other hand, they should not all be measured by the same standard, regardless of their individual capacities, nor all be urged into technical studies, for which but few are fitted by nature. The immense variety of human gifts and abilities is no less evident than the essential unity of the whole race.

This world would be a desperately tedious place if it were not so. Even among ants—between which all religions and philosophies picture as enjoying the ideal state of bliss—ranks and hierarchies and differences of powers and distinctions universally prevail.

Their personalities are always carefully distinguished. Should not, then, this precious quality of individuality, ascribed by common consent to the highest idealizations of existence, be cherished and preserved on this earth, so to give it a little of the charm of diversity and dissimilarity? Let us be careful that in aspiring to ascend the Mountains of the Moon we do not end by burying our race in the sands of Sahara.
